Penn State Poultry Club Holds Recognition Banquet

JUDY PATTON
Union Co. Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — In the same style as his nationally televised chicken ads, Frank Perdue spoke at the Penn State Poultry Science Club banquet. The third annual awards banquet was held here last week.

"The horizons are unlimited in agriculture today," Perdue told students and industry people at the banquet. You don't have to be a straight A student to succeed in business, he said, but you have to be willing to work hard, to accept criticism, and to learn.

Perdue dropped out of college to go into business with his father, who had a small hatchery with 2,000 white leghorn layer hens near Salisbury, Md. Today Perdue Farms processes 7.5 million chickens a week and has $1.3 billion in annual sales.

"My father was a great teacher," Perdue said. Even during the Depression, Perdue made money on egg contracts. When the flocks died from a disease during World War II, Perdue switched to broilers. They also started processing their own feed then because they couldn't get ingredients during the war. In the 1950s and 1960s they added feed mills and soybean plants to their operation.

Perdue attributed his success to drive, which he said is the common denominator of all successful people. He also believes "you have to diversify enough to make it," as long as all the businesses are closely related. High quality products is also a key, and Perdue has spent about $40 million in the last eight years for quality improvement.

About advertising, Perdue said, "Nothing will destroy a good product quicker than a poor ad." But the product must meet the expectations the consumer has from the ad, as he warned. Eighty percent of new products fail because the advertiser assumed the consumer is stupid.

Investing in research and development of the best product is important at Perdue, whose broilers have 14-20 percent more breast meat than any other broilers, according to Perdue. Good delivery service and health and safety provisions for employees are also prime concerns at Perdue Farms.

Farmer Action Corrects County Clean, Green Assessments

Editor's Note: This is the first in a two-part series about real life events surrounding local-government decisions in two adjacent Pennsylvania counties and how they affected agricultural and rural landowners. These stories are about hometown officials, and how assumptions by government officials made life difficult for some family farmers.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A more than five-year-old dispute over the real estate taxing rate under Dauphin County's "Clean and Green" tax-reduction program is nearing its end.

This past week, two meetings were held at county schools to explain the specifics of the Clean and Green Act and how a county-wide reappraisal of taxes under the act is to be performed. A third and final public explanation meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday at the Upper Dauphin High School.

County-hired mass appraisal and assessment business 21st Century Appraisals Inc., based out of Port Matilda, has been conducting the meetings to inform landowners of the benefits and drawbacks of the Clean and Green preferential tax reduction program.

21st Century was hired by the county in accordance with a Dauphin County court order to change the way it has assessed real estate values for Clean and Green properties.

The dispute and current actions began in 1985 when Dauphin County peformed a county-wide reassessment and did an across-the-board doubling of appraisal.

The dispute has ended after one farm family used its own resources to initiate a legal battle with county officials challanging the way they treated land presumed protected under Clean and Green.

The issue was not reported in local newspapers, and according to officials at the educational meetings, almost all of the landowners are not aware of the lawsuits which caused the mass reappraisals.

But the fact that these meetings are even scheduled is because of the efforts by the Russel Cassel

Graybeal: Bottom Line Most Important

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

PEACH BOTTOM (Lancaster Co.) — For Joe Graybeal and his brother Steve, the bottom line is more important than fancy buildings or modern equipment.

"We are a low-cost operation, and we don't have a high herd average," Graybeal said. "At 19,800 pounds, we are way behind those fellows who are in the 25,000-pound range. We watch these records, but we are not sure how they get there without spending a fair amount of money. And we are not sure we want to invest all that much in buildings and equipment. You can always invest in buildings, but there must be a return for the investment."

Joe and Steve started farming on the home place along Mason Dixon Road in southern Lancaster County on the Maryland line in 1968. Since that time two additional neighboring farms (all the meadows join) have been added to their holdings. The dairy herd has

Livestock Care Topic Of Housing Expo

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Forget the fancy, expensive housing facilities right now, for instance, and concentrate on some of the fundamentals of taking care of animals.

Know their flight zone. Be wary of how you load them onto and off the chute. Learn more about how to treat them right, and they'll treat you right.

Some of these concerns will be addressed at this year's Animal Housing Expo, a show for Northeast livestock, dairy, and poultry producers, set July 13-14 at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

Many of the problems associated with cattle — especially bruising — can be handled by knowing several of the fundamen-

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, April 28, 1993

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained good overall, especially on 3 pound and lighter sizes. Heavier weights were at least adequate. Live supplies were generally moderate; weights were desirable to heavier than desired. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged to mostly 1 cent higher at 54 to 65 cents. Trade sentiment was firm to higher. In the part complex, breast items were noted as short or closely balanced, particularly bone-in breasts. Leg quarters were adequate to barely adequate and firmly held at most plants. Wings were in heaviest supply and slow to clear.

Prices are trending about unchanged on light type fowl but sales are too few to report on heavy hens. Leghorn availability continues to fill most slaughter plants to desired capacities this week, however some operations have limited space open next week. Offerings of heavy hens are short to about adequate for only fair and unaggressive interest from buyers. Trade sentiment generally steady.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, April 28, 1993

Trucklot buying interest was about as expected for mid-week. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts continued to be short of covering trade needs. Some sellers asked higher prices for this morning's product. Supplies of yellow skin line run breasts were very tight while some white skin product started to show. However trucks were not available to move the product. Furthermore, most buyers were becoming cautious at the higher asking prices.

Yellow skin leg quarters were tight and trading was reported at higher prices. Other dark meat items were balanced with current needs. Wings were available at some locations and slow to clear.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MAY 3 9 1993

FULL FLOWER MOON, MAY 5.

BEN'S CARTOON

May 9 marks the birth of the newspaper cartoon in America. The cartoon, "Join or Die," was designed by Benjamin Franklin and published at Philadelphia in his Pennsylvania Gazette in 1754. Franklin used the illustration to call for a union of Britain's thirteen colonies, a highly controversial opinion. The idea of using a drawing to deliver a political message was a new one on this side of the Atlantic

Energy and persistence conquer all things.

— Benjamin Franklin

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Smooth out a small nick in the edge of a glass with an emery board.

EARTHWISE

On a recent trip to our local "earth friendly" store, we were amazed at the products made from recycled materials. There were pens and bulletin boards made from recycled tires, and pens, rulers, scissors, and pushpins made with recycled plastic. The products were well made and reasonably priced We wondered: If these things can be made from recycled materials at an incredibly lower cost to the environment, why are manufacturers still making them with virgin materials?

New York & Phila. Frozen Egg Report

Tuesday, April 27, 1993

The market tone remained unsettled. Trading was irregular as buyers and sellers had growing differences of opinions in regard to values. Raw materials were more available in instances but most breakers were unaggressive and purchased accordingly. Floor stocks were adequate for current needs.

OPINION

Out Of Control

In an article from The Plain Dealer in Cleveland, Ohio, Keith Epstein reports that:

You can pour it on your baby carrots and romaine, but don't try moving salad oil by truck or train - the government says that's hazardous.

* "As hazardous as petroleum," complains Sen. Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind. "It just makes no sense."

The Department of Transportation was only following instructions.

"An interpretation of the Oil Pollution Act," explains spokeswoman Patricia Klinger.

Four years ago, after the Exxon Valdez fouled the Alaskan coastline, Congress ordered the agency to safeguard the environment from large spills of "volatile, highly toxic and sometimes frightening hazardous materials."

Such as? "Oil of any kind," the legislation said.

Bureaucrats hungry for - well, something a little more precise - turned to a definition of oil by the Environmental Protection Agency: Anything that causes "a film or sheen upon ... water."

An average citizen doesn't have to pore over scores of pages of government documents to figure that one out. It means, besides Seven Seas or Newman's Own: Coconut oil, whole milk, cocoa butter, and even sun tan cream.

As a result, the government now wants large shipments of such products to include expensive anti-spill packaging, labeling for emergency response teams and disaster plans.

And all those requirements could mean slightly higher costs to - well, guess who?

"Inappropriate and illogical," objects Robert Dietz, a lawyer for producers of vegetable oils.

"Overly legalistic," rails Lugar, who predicts Indiana and Ohio soybean farmers will be hit even harder than consumers.

"Good intentions run amok," observes M.J. Fiocco, a lobbyist for companies that ship goods by train and truck. "I just don't think Congress was worried about a spill of salad oil."

Tossed into the fray, bureaucrats at the Transportation Department agency that did the deed have fielded more than 100 complaints, including letters from 30 members of Congress.

The complaints point out, among other things, that vegetable oils never hurt anyone, nor caused significant environmental harm.

Before reversing anything, DOT's Research and Special Projects Administration must hold a public hearing. On May 13 the agency will "gather additional information," spokeswoman Klinger confirmed.

"Everybody agrees that after Prince William Sound we have to protect the environment from petroleum and other harmful products," says Fiocco. "But foodstuffs? It defies common sense. Things got a bit out of control."

NOW IS THE TIME

To Clean Fan Louvers

This past week I had the opportunity to visit several poultry farms to check ventilation fans in preparation for the upcoming summer heat.

What we observed was many dirty fan louvers reducing the amount of air the fan could move. On one farm, the farmer had spent the day before cleaning five of his 26 fans. The clean fans were moving more than 24,000 cubic feet per minute (cfm) per fan compared to 7,000 cfm for the dirty fans.

Based on this farm, the farmer needed more than three dirty fans to do the job of one clean fan. This was costing him extra electricity now, but this summer, these dirty fans will cause increased mortality and decreased egg production.

To gain the most from your fans, you need to clean the louvers at least once a week. The first key to success in raising confinement animals is proper ventilation.

The fans are the heart of your ventilation system. By keeping them operating at top performance, you are now able to work on achieving top performance from your animals.

Make cleaning fan louvers a regular job on your farm. Otherwise, you are letting dirt eat money right out of your wallet.

To Protect Sinkholes

Jeffrey Stoltzfus, extension agent-nutrient management, reminds us sinkholes are environmentally sensitive areas that need to be treated with care.

Sinkholes are depressions that occur in areas underlain by carbonate rock, such as limestone or dolomite. As water passes through cracks or fractures in the bedrock, the carbonate bedrock is gradually dissolved until the openings become large enough for soil to settle into the hole.

Since the soil in the bottom of sinkholes is often thin, it provides little filtering of surface water entering the sinkhole. Contaminated water that enters sinkholes will enter the groundwater very quickly and could contaminate wells and springs in a large area.

Minimize the damage from a sinkhole by keeping the following things in mind:

- Do not use sinkholes as dumping sites. The rain water and drainage that flows through trash filled sinkholes carries contaminants directly in the groundwater.
- Never dump water from spray tanks or any other hazardous liquids into sinkholes.
- Keep the area around sinkholes planted in grasses. This buffer of vegetation will help filter runoff.

By voluntarily following good stewardship practices, you will help reduce government rules and regulations and possibly keep yourself out of serious fines and lawsuits.

To Improve Herbicide Effectiveness

The effectiveness of a weed control program may be improved by following five easy steps:

1. Match the control program, including the herbicide, to the weed problems in the field.

2. Plant and apply pre-emergence herbicides as soon after the last tillage operation as possible. Many herbicides are only effective on germinating seeds and will not control weeds after they have germinated.

3 Use a rotary hoe or spike tooth harrow to incorporate herbicides if rain is not received within 5 to 7 days after application of the herbicide.

4. Take advantage of cultivation to control escape weeds whenever possible.

5. Develop realistic goals for the weed control program. Crops will tolerate some weeds with little or no impact on yields. However, watch for escape weeds which could become problems in the future.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

FIRST, THE WATER
May 2, 1993

Background Scripture:
John 1:19-34.
Devotional Reading:
John 1:35-42.

When I was a boy during World War II, I began to build a lot of models of airplanes being used by the Allied forces. Notice, I said I "began"—I said nothing about finishing these models. My problem was that I was impatient and wanted to get to the completed model too quickly. I didn't want to take the time to fool with all the details and wait for the glue on all those small pieces to dry.

Today, I suppose you might try to cover my impatience with the term "results oriented." Yes, I was more interested in the finished product than all the stages in-between starting and finishing. But, just as no clever arrangement of bad eggs can make a good omelette, there's no way to excuse my desire to get results without working and waiting for them. The fact is that results are usually made up of those little details — like putting piece to piece. So in our spiritual lives too: very often, we cannot see the desired outcome unless we are willing to work patiently. We all want to be instant saints and natural mystics.

PREPARING FOR FIREWORKS

In 1990 I attended the 150th anniversary of the University of Pennsylvania (if I may insert with some pride, the nation's oldest university!). One of the highlights was a concert of Handel's Fireworks Suite and a fireworks display on the steps of the Philadelphia Museum overlooking the city of Philadelphia. The fireworks were the most spectacular we have ever seen and it was one of those enchanted evenings. Later, however, we heard about all the preparation that went into our "enchanted evening" and, if you have ever seen anyone set up a fireworks display, you know it is painstaking, intricate work.

So, no matter how spiritual enchantment occurs in our lives, you can be assured that it is almost always preceded by some kind of mundane preparation, conscious or unconscious. The Holy Spirit very often only comes when we have first prepared ourselves with a baptism of water. I am speaking figuratively, of course. I do not mean actual water must precede the Holy Spirit, but what water symbolizes, penitent preparation and receptivity. According to the Baptist, this was his mission, to prepare people for the coming of Christ and the baptism of the Holy Spirit. "I myself did not know him," said John, "but for this I came baptizing with water, that he might be revealed to Israel...he who baptizes with the Holy Spirit" (John 1:31, 33b). (Also, I am using Holy Spirit "Baptism" in its broader historical and orthodox Christian conotation, rather than in the more current and narrow" charismatic" sense).

PREPARE THE WAY

You and I cannot give someone the baptism of the Holy Spirit, but we can help them to prepare to receive the Christ into their hearts and lives and the Holy Spirit follows. Just as John was sent to prepare people for Jesus, so we are sent by God to do the very same thing, even though our methods may considerably differ. John came preaching in the wilderness; most of us will need instead to witness, in the marketplace. Whatever we do and however we do it, our purpose is the same as his: "that he might be revealed..." John's confession is as timely today for us as it was in his own day: "And I have seen and have borne witness that this is the Son of God" (1:34). That's all we are called to do and that's all we can do. If we "prepare the way," it is up to God how to use our efforts for his purpose. He sends the Holy Spirit into people's lives and hearts. But, first, the water...!

Chore-Time Duratrim Cage Systems are designed to be perfect for remodeling!

CHORE-TIME® DURATRIM-CB Curtain Back

CHORE-TIME® DURATRIM- DBS Dropping Board and Scraper

You get more room in our top cage for extra birds
Note the extra wire in partitions, backs and tops for added strength
ULTRAFLO® goes 80 feet per minute and has a 5 year warranty
Special wire on cage floors is welded before being galvanized. This gives stronger welds and better coating, one more reason why Chore-Time outlasts other systems

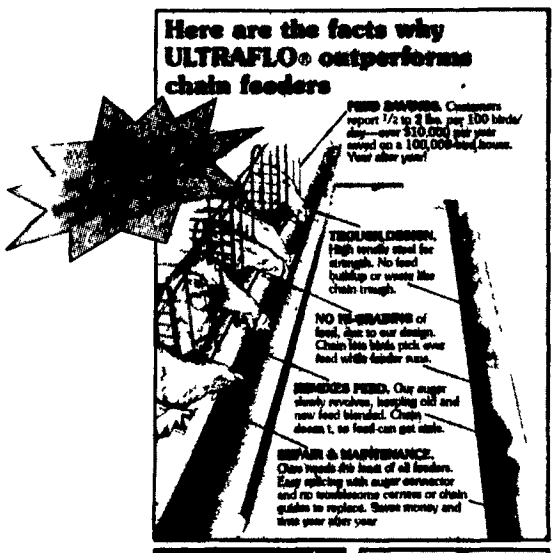
Egg tray is out farther to prevent egg jam-ups
This extra high lip on the egg tray saves eggs
Available with 24"x20" cages or 16"x20" cages
Get 33% more birds because it is only 73" wide

Remodel with Chore-Time and you can have more birds, better performance and less maintenance. Chore-Time's 4 tier, 20 inch deep Duratrims are the same width as 3 tier dropping board systems and 4 tier reverse cages. Go from 60,000 birds to 80,000 birds.



Here are the facts why ULTRAFLO® outperforms chain feeders
FEED SAVINGS. Customers report 1/2 to 2 lbs. per 100 birds/day—over $10,000 per year saved on a 100,000-bird house. Year after year!
TROUGH DESIGN. High tensile steel for strength. No feed buildup or waste like chain trough.
NO RE-GRAINING of feed, due to our design. Chain has blade pick over feed with feeder auger.
EVENLY FEED. Our auger slowly revolves, mingling old and new feed blended. Chain doesn't, so feed can get stale.
REPAIR & MAINTENANCE. Chain needs the least of all feeders. Easy splicing with auger connector and no troublesome corners or chain guides to replace. Saves money and trees year after year

SIMPLE OPERATION. "Push-Pull" Power Units with low HP motor are located along the feeder line as needed.

EASY AUGER CONNECTOR. Allows fast and simple installation, also quick and easy repair of auger if ever necessary.

Over 80% of the nation's top egg producers* have already switched to Chore-Time cages with ULTRAFLO® Feeders!*

Egg producers have been putting up with obsolete chain feeders far too long. Now there's a better way: Chore-Time's proven ULTRAFLO Cage Feeding System. Since introduction, more than 80% of the top 54 egg producers* have gone to ULTRAFLO. A lot of smaller ones have too.

They've all looked at the advantages and chosen ULTRAFLO. That's because it makes them more profitable. Total egg production and egg size—these are the best benefits of our complete feeding system.

Why not check out the facts for yourself? Contact us now—or ask any producer who owns ULTRAFLO.

Because the only negative comments about our feeding system come from our competition—not from our customers.

Introducing the LVP Vacuum Supply System from Alfa Laval Agri.

Finding an outstanding vacuum supplier has never been easier. Now it's making a choice that's the difficult part.

The new LVP Vacuum Supply System is sure to meet your demands. It's designed to perform well for long run-times. And because it doesn't use water and requires only minimal lubrication, operating costs are considerably lower and maintenance is considerably easier than with other types of vacuum suppliers.

We have a ready supply of alternatives as well.

If you're looking for reliability and energy efficiency, you can count on our rotary vane suppliers. And if it's durability and quiet operation you're after, our water ring suppliers would definitely be a smart choice.

Ask your nearest independent Alfa Laval Agri dealer about the new LVP Vacuum Supply System or any of the other vacuum suppliers that make up our complete line. No matter which one you choose, you can't go wrong.

Infinity is the way things will go in the future: more service, more choice, more flexibility, and more variety.

Infinity System Module Dairy Management System (DMS) is a national DHIA certified service and one of 10 service modules under Infinity.

A "module" is a term for a subpackage of services within a total system. Under the Infinity system, each of the 10 modules is designed to stand alone in providing a range of specific services, but the modules are also connected through the overall scope of Infinity system so that information can be transferred between modules as needed.

The DMS module, for example, is a traditional, paper-based dairy herd management service providing the entire range of official and unofficial records services for dairy producers.

It has a lot of flexibility and choices, and provides a full range of printed reports for dairymen to use in managing their milking and dry cows, herds and young stock. All reports and services are optional at the producer's discretion, giving him control over the total cost of the service.

The services are divided further into five sections or packages, for ease of promotion and choice-making, but not to limit choices. Prices for the packages are discounted from the total cost of those options selected individually.

The five sections consist of a Basic Package Report for herd and cow management; three Advanced Reports (Levels I, II and III); and an Optional Reports Services.

The Basic Package Report is designed to give a dairyman the primary reports needed to manage all aspects of his dairy operation.

Included in this package are a Monthly Cow Lactation Report, Herd Summary Report I or II, Individual Cow Page each lactation, Young Stock Listing, annual cow and herd production certificates, barn sheets, and direct automated billing.

The three advanced level packages are laid out differently, depending on the need for information.

Level I includes reports on reproductive management, somatic cell management, and a report on an annual herd management awards, an annual herd profile, and one special report from a customized report list.

Under the Level II section, included are a semiannual PTA report, semiannual report on potential identification problems, an annual listing of cows sold, and an optional special report.

Under the Level III section, the DMS module provides 365-day lactation records, monthly record updates to a breed association for DIR, computer-generated registration applications, and an option special report.

Among the stand-alone options which are individually prices, available options include ARIS on-line services, heifer management system, herd performance evaluator service, a complete nutrition management system, barn cards, calf books, stable breeding cards, laboratory component analysis reports, and young sire evaluations.

A sample of the packaged reports can be obtained by calling the Pa.DHIA office at (814)-865-1517, or 1-800-325-2720.

The power of Infinity comes from the unique integration of individual service modules which permit inforamtion in one module to be shared with other modules. While some modules rely on input of data from other modules, the overall design allows a DHIA or dairy producer to select only those modules needed.

In addition to DMS, a systems overview of the 10 modules in Infinity includes:

- OFS — On Farm System-Dairy Comp 305 and Dairy Plan.
- OFS+ — On-Farm System plus Genetic Evaluations and Young Sire Programs.
- FSS — Field Services System.
- DES — Data Entry System.
- LCS — Laboratory Control System.
- EES — Extension and Education Service.
- CS — Consultant's Service.
- COM — Communication System.
- FPS — Finance and Personnel Service.

Eastern Milk Delegates To Russia Report To Congress

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A team of management and board members from Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative traveled to Washington, D.C. this week to brief members of Congress and officials at the U.S. Department of Agriculture on farm issues, including the recent dairy mission to Russia.

Eastern General Manager Mike Donovan, the Syracuse, N.Y. man who led the humanitarian and trade delegation to Moscow earlier this month, said they "wanted to alert USDA officials to an impending request from Russia for millions of pounds of butter which would result in close to a quarter reduction of government surplus stocks.

Donovan said USDA officials were "encouraged by the news of an impending request from Russia" and added that American dairy farmers would benefit from any reduction in surplus dairy products because it would help keep the price of their raw milk from going down.

While Donovan brought Washington officials up to date on Eastern's international concerns, Eastern President Lewis Gardner spoke about domestic issues with various senators, representatives and staffers from the Senate and House Agriculture committees.

Gardner, who himself participated in a humanitarian aid effort to the former Soviet Union over a year ago, said, "We wanted to impress on members of Congress some of the detrimental aspects of the president's proposed tax package, and what kind of impact it can have on farmers."

Gardner said they discussed "major concerns" of Northeast farmers, including budget-appropriation implications for farm and related programs, tax issues and the energy/BTU tax.

Eastern Cooperative Relations Manager Anthony Schlesier, who was part of both last year's and this year's delegation to Russia, told congressional leaders he saw "major improvements" in Moscow's economy.

"You can find many more kiosks and street vendors," said Schlesier, of Hartwick, N.Y. "I was even able to stop on the street and get a shesh ka bob. That was unheard of last year."

Other members of the Eastern Milk Producers team visiting Washington were Vice President Tim Bryant of Pawlet, Vt.; Secretary Ed Schoen of Phelps, N.Y., and board members Robert Thompson of Wyalusing, Robert Gabel of Newport, and Jerrel Heatwole of Greenwood, Del. Also attending the meetings was Assistant General Manager Joseph Mathis of Syracuse, N.Y.

The meetings were arranged by two Washington-based farm organizations, the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives and the Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives.

Land O' Lakes Presents Fourth Butter Award to Holly Milk

BETH MILLER
Franklin Co. Correspondent

MOUNT HOLLY SPRINGS (Cumberland Co.) — The Holly Milk plant has a lot of proof hanging on the wall that it makes better butter.

The plant for the fourth year in a row has won the coveted Land O' Lakes Award from the nationally-known butter company.

The workers at the plant east of Mount Holly Springs are pretty proud about that, said Bill Schreiber, the company's chief executive officer.

They should be.

To win the award, the plant had to beat the five other plants in the country that make butter for Land O' Lakes, Schreiber said.

Holly Milk and four of the other plants are independent operations that work under contract with Land O' Lakes. The other plant is owned by Land O' Lakes itself, said Schreiber.

Land O' Lakes sponsors the annual contest to boost the quality and standards of the plants that make its product, he said.

Shcreiber said the award is given based on the physical characteristics of the butter each plant makes, a plant's personnel practices, general sanitation, record-keeping and the condition of packaging.

He said inspectors from Land O' Lakes come to the plant unannounced six times a year and complete a full-scale audit. They check the entire system and give the plant a numerical score, he said.

The winning of the Land O' Lakes Award means Holly Milk will have an increase in the amount of butter it will make for Land O' Lakes, Schreiber said.

He said his plant makes butter only for Land O' Lakes, both salted and unsalted butter. The plant is Land O' Lakes' largest supplier of unsalted butter, he said.

Workers at Holly Milk have more to crow about than just the Land O' Lakes Award, however.

The buttermakers also recently entered a competition at the Minnesota State Fair after the fair opened that contest to competitors from other states.

Buttermaker Jeff Kutz finished first in the fair's competition.

The buttermakers also entered four other contests and four of them finished in the top 10 nationwide. One finished in third place overall.

Holly Milk is a division of the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, which has 3,500 members. The plant receives its milk from a seven-state area that includes Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware and Maryland.

Holly Milk opened in 1978 with just 30 employees. Today it has 118 employees.

The plant, whose motto is "Together, We Achieve" also makes other products besides butter.

The whole dry milk products it makes are sold mainly to the confectionary industry, like the Hershey Chocolate Co., Schreiber said.

He said its non-fat dry milk products are mainly sold to companies like Kraft for things like ice cream mixes.

Holly Milk's buttermilk products, which are a by-product of the butter-making process, are sold to ice cream producers and the bakery trade, Schreiber said.

And the plant also makes condensed products which it supplies to Borden's for sweetened condensed milk, he said.

A worker operates the packaging machine at the Holly Milk plant which wraps the plant's prize-winning Land O' Lakes-labeled butter.

All-in-all, Holly Milk, which operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, makes 36 million pounds of butter a year. That comes out to 7,400 pounds of butter an hour that is made by the 20 employees in the butter department.

The milk processing department of the plant processes about 568 million pounds of milk a year. Of that, 57 million pounds goes to make whole condensed milk, 266 million pounds goes to non-fat dry milk, 11 million pounds goes to whole milk powder and 234 million pounds goes to skim condensed milk.

Eastern Milk Pays Storm Losses

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The board of directors of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative voted Wednesday, April 28, to pay member farmers for any milk they lost in the "blizzard of '93" this past March.

"We're paying 100 percent of the storm losses," said Board President Lewis Gardner, who himself runs a family farm in Galeton, Pa.

Eastern General Manager Michael Donovan said 135 of Eastern's 3,000 members lost a combined total 353,000 pounds of milk to spoilage when the March snowstorm cut power or kept milk trucks from getting to farms for up to four days.

The most severely hit areas were in eastern and south eastern Pennsylvania. Donovan said two thirds of the farmers suffering losses were from Pennsylvania, and the rest were split among Vermont, New York, Maryland and Delaware.

Gardner said the board decided to pay farmers $12 per hundredweight, bringing the price tag for lost milk to over $42,000.

"This is another benefit of belonging to a cooperative, where we can help alleviate major losses that would ordinarily be a hardship on individual farmers," said Gardner.

Eastern Milk annually markets 1.5 billion pounds of milk for its member-owners. Headquartered in Syracuse, the dairy co-op also has offices or facilities in Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Commodity Board Nominations Sought

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff has announced that nominations are being accepted for positions on several commodity promotion and research boards. The boards include apple marketing, peach and nectarine research, potato research, sheep and lamb marketing, and vegetable marketing and research.

"This is a great opportunity for producers to get involved with marketing and research programs that affect their livelihood," Wolff said. "Decisions are made here that prevent losses and increase sales."

Producers affected by the programs are eligible to serve on the boards. To nominate someone for membership to one of the boards, submit the person's name, address, and area of interest to Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Market Development, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408. Nominations will be accepted until May 13.

Dairy Farmers Need $16 A Hundredweight For Milk

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — Surveys conducted by the Progressive Agriculture Organization (Pro Ag) during several meetings with dairy farmers clearly indicate the average dairy farmer believes he should receive an average milk price of $16 per cwt. in order to cover operating costs plus making the needed investments in his farm.

According to John Pardoe, president of Pro Ag, the organization held the meetings with dairy farmers under the banner of the National Dairy campaign. The campaign is an effort by dairy farmers and organizations across the United States in an attempt to unify dairy farmers in support of a New National Dairy Policy.

Pardoe said, "Dairy farmers are tired of selling their capital assets, using up their equity and being forced to supplement their inadequate milk prices with off-farm income."

Arden Tewksbury, manager of Pro Ag, conducted the meetings. Tewksbury said, "Not only did the dairy farmers report the need of $16 for milk, but they also strongly support a new milk pricing formula based on the national average cost of production as determined by the USDA. To prevent the possibility of increased, unneeded milk production, the dairy farmers indicate they favor a supply management program such as a two-tier program. It may be structured in different forms, but basically the program would allow the dairy farmers to receive a realistic price from the market place for the milk used in the commercial market (considered to be about 96 or 97 percent of the national production) and a much cheaper price would be paid for the remaining milk."

President Pardoe claims under the present pricing formula, approximately three or four percent of the National Production becomes the culprit that destroys all milk prices.

Tewksbury has been a strong critic of the present pricing formula (M and W Price) for many years, calling the formula unrealistic, inadequate, and does not respond to the pricing needs of dairy farmers.

During the meetings, Tewksbury used the USDA's 1990 cost of production figures and put together a formula that would return a pay price to dairy farmers in federal order #2 of $15.81. This figure allows $1.50 per cwt. as a return to dairy farmers for their management and risk.

Tewksbury claims that some cost of production pricing formulas that are being thrown around uses the selling of capital assets and off-farm income as a method of lowering the cost of producing milk. The USDA's formula does not support the above methods.

At a recent milk hearing conducted by the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board, (PMMB) Pro Ag did not support using the Pennsylvania Agriculture Statistical Service Formula as a method of establishing over-order premiums. Instead, Pro Ag urged the PMMB to increase their premium from 80 cents per cwt. to $1.05 per cwt. on July 1, 1993.

President Pardoe concluded by saying, "Pro Ag clearly supports a new pricing formula based on the average cost of production, but the most realistic formula we see is the one used by the USDA."

Labs Prepare

COLUMBUS, C

Effective July 1, the regulatory level for somatic cell counts (SCC) in Grade A bulk tank milk will drop from a million per milliter down to 750,000.

DHIA laboratories are prepared to accurately measure individual cow SCC levels to determine which cows are increasing the total tank level.

Due to the increasing need for accurate cell counting, National DHIA developed the Quality Certification Program. DHIA labs must participate in monthly tests of blind or unknown samples to measure the accuracy of the instrument measurement.

The accuracy level of instruments nationwide has steadily improved for SCC, fat and protein reading.

Instrument sensitivity is such that allowable tolerance variation is down to ⅛ of what it had been just a few years ago.

Further incentive for reduction of SCC is that it has been shown through research that milk and milk component production continues to increase as SCC drops below the 150,000 SCC level. This was indicated in a study conducted by Heald, et al.

Contact the local DHIA affiliate for more information on the DHIA-SCC program.

Graybeal:

increased over the years to the present 380 milk cows and corresponding young stock.

The heifers are housed on various barns on the farms, and the cows are housed in free stalls. A computerized double eight milking parlor automatically identifies each cow at milking, and the DHIA test weight comes within one tenth of one percent of the bulk tank shipment weights.

"The system is incredibly accurate and makes the process of going to computers worth the effort," Graybeal said. Now the information on the cows is available, and I don't have to fight for it. The management is so much easier."

Graybeal does fault the milking machine companies who each have their own computer programs that will not speak to the DHIA DRCP systems.

"The companies need to study how helpful they are being with the DRCP's and have their programs communicating better. Programs should be helping dairy farmers get on and stay on official test rather than take them away from it just to keep their own little nitch in the market. We need computer programs like hydraulic hoses. They all must be compatible."

According to Graybeal, the farm generates a lot of cash flow, and many companies want to get in on this flow by selling their products. And that is expected. But that isn't Graybeal's purpose. He wants to keep the cash flow at home. That's why he has not gone to TMR mixing.

On the Graybeal farms, a self-unloading wagon is used in place of a TMR mixer. Haylage and corn silage is put on the wagons together at a ratio of two to one, and concentrate is placed on top. The feed is somewhat mixed in this way, but not as well as TMR.

"Maybe a TMR mixer would be what we need to raise our level of production over the 21,000 lb. mark," Graybeal said. "But the mixer wagon is a lot more expensive. And you need a back up in case one breaks down. "We have not seen the justification for complete blending."

As for BST, Graybeal thinks it will not have much use in their herd. "If cows are under stress now, they don't need extra stress unless someone sees a way to manage it that I don't," Graybeal said. "The extra milk is nice, but I think we are reaching a plateau with our nutrition. BST steps beyond that, and I'm not sure the nutrition needs of extra milk production from BST can be easily met. I don't want to put more expensive feed into the cow unless I can make a better bottom line."

The day of this farm visit, Harold Lindicamp, Lancaster DHIA tester, was on the job. Lindecamp said Lancaster's change to Raleigh and the computers involved with the change has gone well for him. At the time, Lindecamp had all his herds changed over to computer except the herds with more than one group. As of press time, 60 percent of all cows in Lancaster County were on Raleigh's computer system with more added weekly.

Graybeal is Lancaster DHIA's representative on Raleigh's DRCP committee. "I'm very pleased with what they (Raleigh) are doing," Graybeal said. "They are on top of things. Their board of directors is a cross section of dairy farmers from across the nation. Board members have a lot of ability and anywhere from 2500 cows to 60 cows in their herds at home."

"In Lancaster County it's going good. We are working toward 100 percent on computer by June. I give the supervisors a lot of credit. They have taken on a momumental task to learn something so quickly.

"Lancaster DHIA is trying hard to give the supervisors all the support they can," Graybeal said. "And Raleigh's program is keyed from the supervisor right into their mainframe computer in South Carolina. I think Lancaster DHIA is on the right track."

Robert Barr, president of 21st Century Appraisals, explains the ramifications of joining Clean and Green tax abatement program to 125 Dauphin County landowners who either are part of the program, or are eligible. This is one of three meetings Dauphin County held to correct a 6-year-old tax assessment mistake on Clean and Green participants.

Farmer Action Corrects

dairy farm family, whose farmlands are located between Harrisburg and Hershey.

At heart of the issue was that county officials operated under the philosophy that every landowner should be treated equally; ignoring the fact that the constitution of Pennsylvania had been changed to allow preferential treatment through reduced taxation, paving the way for the Clean and Green Act.

The apparently successful battle led by Russel Cassel (Cassel said the case is not completely over) has been lauded by the Pennsylvania Farmers Association and the state Department of Agriculture as key to keeping any farmland as farmland.

The key protection under Clean and Green land is that it is valued according to its ability to produce — not according to real estate market value.

Without the support from the county courts to reinforce this distinction, officials worried that all the millions of dollars county and state government has paid for development rights would become wasted.

According to Cassel, Fred Wertz, director of the state Farmland Preservation Program for the PDA, "helped out a lot."

Cassel said Wertz not only gladly testified after getting a subpeona to free him from work, but indicated that should Cassel fail, the state's farmland preservation program "could be out the window. The key thing is that there is no commonwealth ruling. There still is no state ruling on land use assessment," Cassel said.

The need for a ruling may or may not become evident. It depends on how other counties treat Clean and Green properties.

If Cassel would have lost his legal battle, the scenario which caused dread among those seeking ways to keep prime farmland in farming was that landowners who had sold development rights to the local governments would have the land taxed according to market value.

Since the market value of farmland is usually higher than the land's ability to produce, those who would try to make a living farming would be hit with high taxes, which is converse to the intent of the farmland conservation laws.

The only drawback to the entire Cassel lawsuit is that it didn't go to a state-level court to arrive at the same decision. It would have served as a stronger precedent for future battles to maintain preferential tax treatment for Clean and Green properties.

However, the case is symbolic of an increasing rift between understanding by agricultural people and non-agricultural people.

This situation and others points to the need for those engaging in agricultural activities to at least stay in touch with local government operations and decision making.

For Russel Cassel, the Dauphin County problem was one in which he was involved in local government, but at the time wasn't in a position to stand up to county government as effectively as he said he would have liked.

"At the time of the reassessment, I was chairman of the conservation district board and we knew the reassessment was coming and we knew how it was being done, maybe a week before it was coming out," Cassel said.

"And I brought it out to the commissioners that it wasn't right and they said they agreed, but when the assessment came out that's the way it was," he said.

"I covninced the (conservation) board to fight about it, but at that time we were trying to build the natural resources building. We were in a position of saying, 'You're not giving (agriculture) enough money, but you're taxing us too much.'"

According to Cassel, the natural resources building had to come first. His personal disagreement with taxing had to wait until he could separate himself from his other community obligations.

At first the battle to correct the tax assessment got off to a bad start. He said he got some advice about filing a suit, and thought that once he initiated it, he could later transfer the case to a class-action suit.

With a class action suit, all landowners would have received the same final judgement that Cassel apparently has received — reduction in tax assessment based on value of the productivity of his farmland, and he would receive payment of all taxes paid at the wrongfully higher rate.

However, since the filing of the suit was done the way it was, Cassel is the only one to receive back taxes. The judge ruled that Cassel was the only one to reap the benefits of the individual suit.

However, Cassel didn't force a court showdown with government officials until exhausting the regular avenues of appeal.

"If we used our farm and won the appeal (through the assessment appeal board), the county would have based" the other Clean and Green properties the same way," Cassel said. "So we appealed it to the board of assessement appeals and were turned down.

"The more research I did, the more I felt that something should be done," he said.

According to Cassel, he tried to get the county conservation board to file a lawsuit on behalf of the Clean and Green participants, but the board was not in a position to hire an attorney.

"So our farmily decided to go ahead and do this and see what happened and that's when we got an attorney."

That was in 1986. In 1993, the county is finally taking action.

"At this point, we're not exactly sure we will get anything back. Our taxes here have been going up about $1,000 a year with the increase in school taxes and everything. There's a lot more wrong in Dauphin County that this, but it boiled down to Act 319 takes precedence."

The county finally came around to understanding the intent of Clean and Green, and when faced with a court order to correct its reassessment procedures, stalled at first. Cassel, through his attorney, complained about the lack of action and the courts found the county in contempt of its order. The county took action.

Cassel's actions and the benefit to the rest of his countians may largely go unnoticed. County officials hired a mass tax appraisal and reassessment service to change the taxing rate, but there has been no publicity that each and every landowner under the Clean and Green could also file suit for back taxes.

Just because the judge found for Cassel only, doesn't mean the same decision should not be held for others in the same position. However, the cost to the county, in legal fees and in back taxes would be large compared to the way it is being handled.

In order to prevent that kind of chaos, the county hired the mass reappraisal and reassessment business and is not publicizing the result of the lawsuit.

So far it appears that their actions will end the 6-year dispute amiably.

However, Cassel warns all landowners and agriculturalists to keep their eyes open — especially those in Lancaster County.

"Lancaster County assessments are low compared to the rest of the state. They're going to get a reassessment."

The saga for Cassel isn't over. Change is inevitable and he sees more coming.

Born on a farm where his father lives, and that was included in the suit, Cassel said he doesn't know how much longer the area will be compatible with agriculture.

"When I went to high school, there were only seven of us who rode the school bus. Now I don't know how many school bus routes there are. And there used to be a regular milk route through the valley. Now we're the only ones in the township shipping milk."

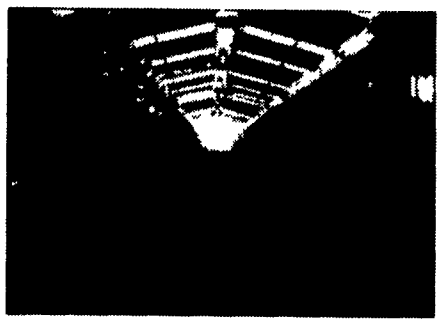
However, Cassel said that all farmers should keep a vigilance, even though it gets more difficult all the time to stay in touch with the operations of local officials.

"Too often the public doesn't know what's going on. I guess it gets too hard to get farmers to do much more right now, with prices low and everybody stretched to the limit. It's hard to get them to meetings anymore.

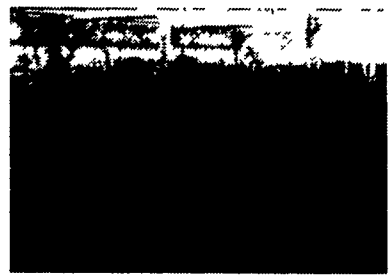
"But you should be involved and anything that you're not in agreement with, you should definitely appeal."

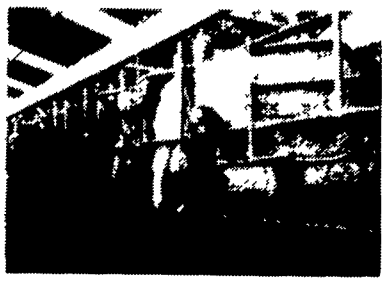
EASE!

Time is money and you'll see how easy it can be to save both with a Westfalia Parlor. And Westfalia has just the right one designed to match your milking needs and style. Whether you choose the new Westfalia Herringbone All-Exit Indexing System, the PRA (All Exit Parallel) or the new AUTOTANDEM, you can't go wrong with Westfalia.



WESTFALIA'S ALL-EXIT, INDEXING HERRINGBONE STALLS





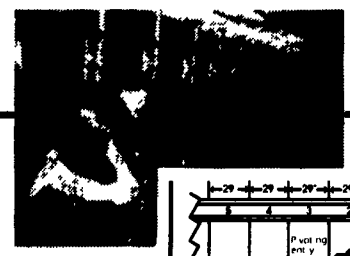
20 to 0 in 8 Seconds!

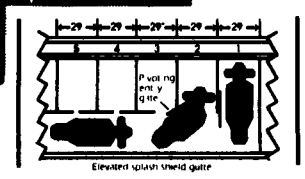
Quick, quiet and smooth best describes Westfalia's All-Eixt, Indexing Herringbone Stalls. You'll have the most efficient cow traffic available with the Westfalia All-Exit.

This great, new system allows all cows to be exited out of the milking area at the same time. Stalls are returned to the entrance position in only 8 seconds. Quiet hydrauics do the work.

But that's only part of the job these heavy-duty stalls will do for you. When in the indexing mode, the breast rails gently nudge cows into the proper milking position. An easy to use control box keeps operation simple.

If you're planning a new barn or are remodeling (fits under an 8' ceiling) this year, the Westfalia All-Exit Indexing Herringbone System should be your choice.





PRA Milking Parlor

THE PROFITABLE RIGHT APPROACH TO PARALLEL STYLE MILKING

WESTFALIA SYSTEMAT

Milk the easy way with Westfalia's PRA Parlor Udders are located just 29" OC apart to easily handle more cows per man, per hour

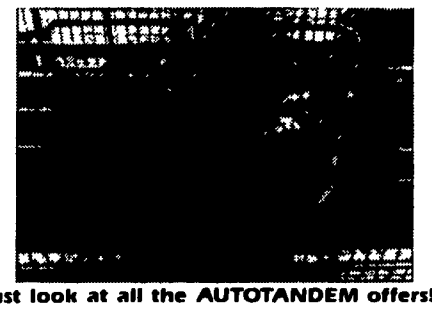
Sequencing gates with positive stops prevent cows from entering the wrong position As one cow enters, the entry gate pivots open for the next cow When milking is completed, the Fast Exit stall system opens up the entire row of gates, releasing all cows at once to quickly exit the parlor, ready for the next cow

And thanks to it's compact design, you can milk twice as many cows in nearly the same amount of space as a herringbone stall setup Milking is done from behind with the milker weight balanced on the cow's quarters for better milk flow

A Westfalia PRA will improve your cow traffic flow and save time in the parlor A PRA will also improve your bottom line

EFFICIENCY!

AUTOTANDEM System



Just look at all the AUTOTANDEM offers!

- Individual milking and care for each cow.
- A slow milking cow does not affect the changeover of cows
- Operator has full side view of entire cow and more.
- Reduced-stress milking for cows and operator
- One person operation with excellent milking efficiency
- Lets you milk smarter for better profits!

COWS PER HOUR	40-45	50-55	65-70	80-85
AUTOTANDEM	2 x 2	2 x 3	2 x 4	2 x 5
Number of Milkers	1	1	1	1

The Westfalia AUTOTANDEM brings a new era of efficiency to side-opening parlor stalls

Westfalia's AUTOTANDEM Parlor Stalls are really amazing It starts when a milking stall entrance gate opens This in turn releases a cow from the holding area gate

The cow is then identified and moves into the stall for milking Once in the stall, the cow is manually prepped and the milker attached This is when the Stimopuls takes over with stimulation necessary for optimal milk let-down

Westfalia's own Metatron Milk Meter records milk produced per individual cow and controls the take-off by milk flow After take-off, the cow is released from the stall and the AUTOTANDEM System restarts automatically, releasing the next cow for milking and repeats the whole process

AUTOTANDEM really lives up to it's name Aside from startup, prepping the cow and attaching the milker, the entire milking operation is AUTOMATIC!

AUTOTANDEM Stalls are tough built with heavy-duty hot-dipped galvanized pipe and self-adjusting vacuum operated gates And what's more, AUTOTANDEM has been field tested on over 2000 herds of 30-400 cows

AUTOTANDEM will let you milk more cows per man One man can handle up to a double 5 AUTOTANDEM milking 80-85 cows per hour 9 cows per hour, per stall now that's efficiency!

Eckel Testifies For Farm Bureau

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Keith Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association/Farm Bureau (PFA) testified last week before the U.S. House Public Works and Transportation Subcommittee on Water Resources and Environment regarding reauthorization of the Clean Water Act.

Eckel testified on behalf of the nation's largest farm organization, the four-milliom-member American Farm Bureau Federation which represents farm bureaus in every state including PFA.

The Clean Water Act was enacted in 1972 and is the nation's primary water pollution prevention law. It has been reauthorized by Congress several times, most recently in 1987.

Eckel said a new reauthorization of the act should preserve the rights of states as the unit of government responsible for water quality standards, and should emphasize local solutions to runoff problems and voluntary prevention programs. Also, Eckel said, "It is critical that a clear, comprehensive wetlands law be passed. From the standpoint of equity to landowners and good conservation such a statute is long overdue." In addition, an adequate commitment of financial resources is essential to make sure whatever program is developed works.

Protection of water resources has been a priority of farmers and ranchers for many years, Eckel told the committee. He listed the following examples:

— Soil erosion has been reduced 90 percent or more on 35.5 million acres of land in the Conservation Reserve Program.

— Crop protection chemicals used by farmers are down 20 percent from 1982.

— Corn's nitrogen fertilizer use efficiency is up 14 percent since 1980.

— Implementation of conservation compliance plans on highly erodible soils is slightly ahead of the expecte rate with 58 percent of planned acres fully implemented.

— Over 88 million acres of cropland are under conservation tillage systems providing residue cover of 30 percent to 90 percent.

Farmers and ranchers "want to do what is right for the environment," Eckel said. "They will respond to problems when provided with sound, scientifically based information and reliable cost-effective solutions." Public policies on water quality "should be based on fact, not perception," Eckel said.

"There is a critical need for continued research and a greater understanding of the site-specified linkages between farm practices and water quality."

In addition, Eckel said, "solutions that work best are those that come from the grassroots up. Achieving improved water quality practices is best accomplished by voluntary, locally designed and implemented site-specific solutions."

Federal "one-size-fits-all" solutions should be avoided, he said.

Patience will be needed, Eckel said, because "achieving water quality improvements is a process that takes time to show results. We should take a reasoned, long-teerm approach to water quality improvement."

Furthermore, Eckel said, "There is an urgent need to consolidate the multitude of water quality programs at the federal and state level." Legislation that has been introduced to enable farmers to establish a single conservation plan for their farms makes sense, Eckel said, but should be expanded to other agencies and programs.

Eckel also discussed, what he called "the lack of a clear national wetlands policy." He told the committee, "Wetlands protection efforts have grown not by design but by default, by litigation and bureaucratic expansion rather than clear congressional intent. No average citizen can tell you what national wetlands policy is."

He urged the committee not to miss the opportunity to develop a clear national wetlands policy. "Something is terribly wrong with federal wetland regulations," Eckel said. "The regulators have overreached. The regulations have no design or common sense."

MILK CHECK

THOMAS JURCHAK

Dairy Specialist
Lackawanna County

THOMAS JURCHAK
Lackawanna Co. Extension Agent

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — With continued production increases, milk and dairy product prices continued their slipping and sliding that started in August.

By the middle of October cheese prices were down 8 cents on blocks and, since then, down another 4 cents to $1.26 per block. But that's still 14 cents above the support price.

That's a total of 12 cents in price drops in 13 weeks so the predictions of a gradual decline were about right.

The increases in milk production have also continued at the 3 to 5 percent rate in the upper Midwest and New York.

Only Pennsylvania dropped back to 1 percent in September.

The affect of the cold, wet weather on harvesting corn for silage or grain may slow down production increases, but grain prices could be low enough to offset the poorer quality.

Right now, cheese processing capacity is being pushed to the limit and only butter—powder plants may have room for more milk.

Powder prices were helping last month, but that market is weakening also to the point where other regions are selling in powder markets normally served by the Midwest.

If price declines continue, you may see powder going into Commodity Credit Corporation storage by the end of the year. Even butter markets have fallen to the point where CCC purchased 3.7 million pounds the first week of November. That was the largest weekly purchase in three months.

Milk Prices

Following the drop in dairy product prices and production increase comes a drop in the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series.

After falling 31 cents in August and September, another 23 cents was added in October for a total of 54 cents in three months.

That makes the M-W $12.05 for October and the first time this year that it fell below year-ago levels.

Further declines are expected for this year, but predictions of a drop to less than $11 per hundredweight next spring are beginning to soften.

Considering the drop of 12 cents so far in cheese prices, the M-W should be down to $11.79 from its peak of $12.59 in July. So there's no doubt about further declines in the next two months particularly since butter and powder prices are adding to the drag.

The only thing that could help is a drop in milk production-increases due to poorer quality forage or lower prices. Or both.

Blend prices in all three federal orders (F.O.) in Pennsylvania are also below last month.

It was 22 cents lower in F.O.2 and F.O.4, and 17 cents in F.O.36. However, the blend prices are still above a year ago by 20 to 40 cents and probably won't drop below last year until next year.

Refund Alert

It's time to add up your milk check stubs to figure how much you shipped to handlers this year.

You've been paying more than 13 cents per-hundredweight all year, sending in excess of $180 million in nine months to your Uncle Sam because of the Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

USDA told Uncle Sam that you would be producing more milk this year in spite of lower prices. It was agreed that, if you didn't produce more than the previous year, you could have your money back — that's .1365 times all the milk you produced in 1992 compared to 1991.

I'm not saying it's for everyone, but if you're very close by the end of November you may want to feed a little more to the calves, stay under your 1991 production and collect your refund. Check it out while there's time to adjust.

Trust Calls For Ag Plan Merger

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Farmland Trust (AFT) strongly supported the consolidation of existing on-farm conservation plans into a single comprehensive plan under the authority of a total resource management agency called the Agricultural and Natural Resources Conservation Service.

In testimony to members of a House Agriculture Subcommittee on H.R. 1440, AFT, a national farmland conservation group based in Washington, called the bill's concept of a single plan a critical step in fully integrating resource conservation into agricultural policy. Fifteen federal programs now requiring farm plans involve conservation and the environment.

"The era of piecemeal conservation plans that address a single issue or meet the goal of only one agency must end," AFT Federal Policy Director Timothy W. Warman told members of a House Agriculture Subcommittee considering H.R. 1440. "American farmers can no longer afford the inefficiency and reduced effectiveness that result from the mixed signals of conflicting plans."

Warmen said a restructured Soil Conservation Service should be given responsibility for the single resource-based plan and be renamed the Agricultural and Natural Resource Conservation Service to reflect its total resource management role. The new structure, he said, would help move the country's agriculture system toward what AFT has termed a "Green Evolution" based on resource stewardship and marketplace economics.

BREEDING SEASON IS APPROACHING

In spite of snow, then mud, then rain, then mud, then more mud, the grass has again become green. This means we are fast approaching breeding season for beef cattle in our part of the world.

It may sound as simple as turning out a bull, but in fact breeding season management is a key strategy to profitability. Here are a few of the important factors for a successful breeding season.

The first criteria for planning a successful breeding season is to evaluate the body condition of the cows. Those cows that are on the thin side (when you can see more than two ribs from the side) will have to start gaining some weight if we expect them to get bred back for next year. The usual way to put weight on a cow is with corn, and it is cheap enough that it would be the feed of choice.

There are several possible causes for those cows that have started losing some weight since calving. If the forage quality is not what it should be, they probably need some additional energy from corn. This would also be true for those cows that are not getting enough forage.

If "they are getting all the hay they want" be sure to evaluate the tonnage being offered and subtract what they are not eating. The latter will be about 30 percent of what is offered in big bales without a feeder, and about 50 percent of what is rolled out on the ground. Intake is not the same as what you put out there, and they only part that counts is what they eat.

Secondly, for some heavier milking cows on fair to poor forage (or any corn silage), there could be a protein deficiency in the ration. This need can probably be met most economically by feeding soybean meal.

A heavy-milking cow requires the equivalent of 4-5 pounds of soybean meal daily to meet protein requirements. If the forage is primarily grass or of poor quality, the cow may need 2-3 pounds of soybean meal daily to meet her needs.

The objective of a breeding season is to get the cows pregnant in as short a time as possible. Healthy cows in the best possible condition will not be bred next fall if there is a bull problem.

First, the bulls should be fertile, healthy, and in good flesh. The best way to test fertility is with a breeding soundness exam (BSE). Unless the bull came from a central test station, this exam may not be possible. The next best test of fertility in young bulls is testicle size. Yearling bulls should have a scrotal circumference of at least 32 centimeters to be considered for breeding purposes.

Second, there should be enough bull power available to get the job done. Bulls from 1-2 years old can service 15-20 cows, those 2-3 years old can service 20-30 cows, and even mature bulls should not be expected to service more than 40-50 cows. If there are too many cows in the pasture, the calf crop will tend to be unnecessarily strung out.

Breed yearling heifers about 20-30 days ahead of the rest of the herd. This will do two things for you. First, calves from heifers are notoriously smaller that those from mature cows, so a calf that is a little older next year will help retain the uniformity of your calf crop. Second, the heifer that calves first as a two-year old has a severe nutritional stress imposed on her. That stress often will result in them not getting bred on time for a second calf. The little extra time she will have before the breeding season starts next year will be an advantage in being able to start cycling on time to be bred.

The most important factor of a good breeding season is not starting it on time, but ending it on time. It is more important to shut the gate on the bull at the right time than it is to open the gate at any specific time.

Most herds will function most efficiently with a 60-day breeding season. After 60 days in the pasture, take the bull out for 75-90 days, palpate the herd, remove the open cows, than turn him back out.

The definition and organization of the calving season is the single most effective way a breeder can manage feed resources, health programs, marketing programs, and labor use.

The Calving Dilemma

It seems like every year there is another new problem that crops up at calving time. This year it was not a new problem, but one that we have visited before.

In 1980, when I was in Missouri, I first heard the term "weak calf syndrome" (whenever we really don't know what it is we call it a syndrome.) Calves that are born "dumb," fail to nurse, remain weak after birth, and die in a few days are the classic symptoms. Many producers have told me of their unpleasant experiences with the problem this year.

I wish there was a good answer to correct this problem, but there is not. Extensive research has been done, but there is no real clear-cut answer on what causes the weak calves.

There is some indication that a protein deficiency in the pregnant cow will contribute to the problem. My experience has been that it will rear up when there is an extreme environmental stress just prior to calving.

Tough winters, cold weather, a lot of snow, cold rains, etc. are the typical times I have heard of it. Do those conditions sound familiar?

Unfortunately, it remains one of those "wait till next year" problems.

Senate Moves Nutrient Management

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Nutrient management legislation which already passed the state House of Representatives came out of the Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee this week without change.

The proposed law in House Bill 100 is the cumulative effect of years of debate over strategies to control the flow of nutrients into the state's water supply.

A pact signed by Gov. Robert Casey, on behalf of Pennsylvania, and the governors of other states with significant drainage into the Chesapeake Bay had targed a 40-percent reduction in the nutrient levels reaching the bay by 2000.

The nutrient management legislation in H.B.100 would create a program where high-density animal agriculturalists would be required to file a plan for handling of excessive manure. Currently, the number of producers involved is expected to be small, although the program allows and encourages voluntary plans to reduce liability.

The proposal would also eliminate local ordinances controlling the application of manure onto land. This was sought because it local law ends with local municipal boundaries. Many farming operations cross municipal boundaries.

According to agricultural lobbyists, the proposal was passed by the Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee without any amendments offered.

The state's leading agricultural organizations are expected to push for the bill to be passed without amendments, which would expedite its passage through the now Democrat-controlled Senate and onto the governor's desk.

Compromise Location For Retirement Community Found On Farmland

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — A "compromise location" has been established for the site of a proposed 77-acre retirement community here called Garden Spot Village — split between farmland owned by Jay and Jean Weber and a 25-acre tract of land owned by John Ranck.

Details of the new location were unveiled at a press conference Tuesday morning at the Earl Township Municipal Building.

The compromise location, which borders the New Holland Borough line north on Ranck Road in Earl Township, lies adjacent to Grace Brethren Church on South Kinzer Avenue and extends westward to Ranck, along single-family housing on Runway Avenue (former site of the old New Holland Airport) and ends just south of the Church of the Nazarene. The site is zoned R (high density residential).

The Webers were out of town and could not be reached for comment, according to Nevin M. Kraybill, spokesman for Garden Spot Village.

"Furthermore, it is understood that Earl Township will place firm restrictions on future sewage service areas to insure the Mill Creek Valley remains in agricultural use," said Boyd.

"I want to congratulate Garden Spot Village for its commitment to the development of a very much needed retirement community and its financial commitment to helping solve one of the township's most serious needs — that of providing public sewer for this portion of the township," said Clarence M. "Jack" Buch, chairman of the township board of supervisors. "Because of this cooperation, we now have an opportunity to take the next step — and that is to obtain the right-of-ways needed for a sewer system."

Actual construction dates will be determined after the permits are obtained, which could take some time.

Buch told Lancaster Farming that, in addition to helping defray costs of a $1.5 million sewage treatment plant that will service the retirement community, a nearby mobile home park, and the private residences in adjacent Airport Road development, the community will derive many other benefits from the village, including bolstering the local economy. The Village Fact Sheet, provided at the press conference, indicates that Garden Spot Village "has offered to assist Earl Township with the costs of constructing a new sewer treatment facility by providing $1.5 million of the project cost."

The site selection has met with the support "of all interested parties," said Dale M. Weaver, president of the board of the Garden Spot Village, in a prepared statement.

According to a prepared release handed out from the Garden Spot Village to all reporters, the retirement area will include an "independent living retirement village, a nursing center, assisted living units, and an Alzheimer's (disease) unit. Initially, 50 independent cottages, 50 apartment units, a personal care facility for 50 people, and a small community center

Clarence M. "Jack" Buch, chairman of the Earl Township board of supervisors, at the podium, said, "Because of this cooperation, we now have an opportunity to take the next step — and that is to obtain the right-of-ways needed for a sewer system." Left from Buch are Nevin M. Kraybill, spokesman for Garden Spot Village; Dale M. Weaver, president of the board of the Garden Spot Village; and Darvin E. Boyd, president of the Lancaster Farmland Trust.

The compromise location, which borders the New Holland Borough line north on Ranck Road in Earl Township, lies adjacent to Grace Brethren Church on South Kinzer Avenue and extends westward to Ranck, along single-family housing on Runway Avenue (former site of the old New Holland Airport) and ends just south of the Church of the Nazarene. The site is zoned R (high density residential).

The Webers were out of town and could not be reached for comment, according to Nevin M. Kraybill, spokesman for Garden Spot Village.

The compromise location was reached as a result of protests at a public hearing early this year over rezoning the previous site considered, which was the Eberly Farm that borders Kinzer Road to the west. Last November, the township supervisors voted down a request to turn the Eberly Farm from rural to residential, but reversed their decision in March, when preservationists from the Lancaster Farmland Trust and the Earl Township Farmland Preservation Trust were allowed nearly a month to pave the way for the compromise location.

Lancaster Farmland Trust indicated they were in support of the compromise location and want the township supervisors to rezone the Eberly Farm back to rural to preserve "the invaluable agrarian character and way of life in the fertile Mill Creek Valley," according to Darvin E. Boyd, president of the Lancaster Farmland Trust.

fitter was Dirk Fehr of Hessen, West Germany and reserve honors went to Janice Dunkle of Mill Hall. Showmanship winners were Janice Dunkle and Meg Willis of Newville.

The intermediate division consisted of those exhibitors whose only showing experience came from previous Expo competition. Susan Bove, a club member from Ann Arbor, Mich. was last year's amateur division champion fitter. Susan continued to prove her fitting skills by being named champion intermediate fitter on Saturday. Aimee Eopechino, of Hanover, also gave a repeat performance in the showmanship competition. Named amateur division champion in 1992, she received the rosette for champion intermediate showman this year. Jodi Gill of Rebersburg was named both reserve intermediate fitter and reserve intermediate showman.

In the professioal division, champion fitter was David Lentz and reserve honors went to Dwight Stoltzfus. Professional champion showman was Adam Tanis of Centre Hall, while David Lentz was named reserve champion.

The club also honored two members, Michael Lynch of Friedens and Cathy Pavelski of Susquehanna, for the time they devoted to the 68th Dairy Expo. Exhibitors chose Michael as the most helpful individual while Cathy was named the hardest working individual.

Overall chairman of this year's Expo was Andy Morley, a junior from Gold, Pa. He was assisted by junior Bryan Herring of Farmington. Terri Packard, a senior from Troy, served as show manager while junior Andy Foster of Petersburg was assistant show manager.

Dairy Expo special events are always a crowd favorite and this year was no exception. Special Events Chairman Sheila St. Clair of Somerset coordinated milk chugging, milking, and calf dressing contests to entertain the spectators. Another highlight was the alumni showmanship contest judged by Richard Packard and won by Gary Bicksler.

Many other club members were involved in Dairy Exposition activities held prior to the fitting and showing contest. Brent Baker, a senior from Martinsburg, chaired the spring judging contest held in March. He was assisted by Jeff Hostetter of Annville. Jodie Everly, 1992 Penn State dairy princess, coordinated this year's dairy princess contest. Terni Packard and Shannon Peterman, a junior from Muncy, were co-editors of the 1993 Penn State Dairyman. The awards banquet, held after the fitting and showing contest at the Holiday Inn, was chaired by Dairy Science Club vice president Aimee Eopechino.

The Dairy Expo awards banquet annually draws together students, alumni, faculty, family and friends. The Department of Dairy and Animal Science uses this time to recognize their distinguished alumnus. Receiving this honor was Charles Brosius of Chester County, Brosius was a 1952 dairy production graduate. He founded and managed Marlboro Mushrooms, which supplies fresh mushrooms to several metroplitan areas. Brosius is honored for his efforts in pioneering changes in an agricultural industry threatened by foreign competition as well as his continued contributions to Penn State.

The Dairy Science Club also recognized their Dairy Exposition dedicatee and outstanding young dairyman.

1993 Dairy Exposition Dedicatee

Honored as this year's Expo Dedicatee was Dr. Albert Barnett of Boswell. Barnett graduated from Penn State with a bachelor's in 1962 before enrolling in the University of Pennsylvania. He received his veterinary medicine degree in 1965.

Since then, Barnett founded and operates Laurel Highlands Animal Hospital and is involved with many associations dealing with Veterinary Medicine. Barnett also owns Barnett Valley Farm, Inc. Through his practice, he has met many past and present Dairy Science Club members. He is an avid supporter of youth activities in his area and maintains strong ties with the College of Agricultural Sciences.

The club honored Barnett as the 1993 Dairy Exposition dedicatee for his strong support of Penn State and dairy activities. Barnett expressed his appreciation for being considered for such an award. He also reminded those in attendance that we all have one thing in common, no matter when we attended Penn State. Although customs and tuition costs have changed, we all have "the pride of a Penn State education," he said.

Outstanding Young Dairyman

Donald Welk, Jr., a 1989 Penn State graduate in dairy and animal science, was the recipient of this year's Outstanding Young Dairyman Award. While at Penn State, Don was a member of the 1988 Dairy Judging Team, Nittany Lion Fall Classic selection chairman, and Dairy Exposition show manager.

Don returned to the family farm, Stonehurst Farm Dairy Sales, Inc., after graduation. He maintains 100 acres of crops, cares for replacement heifers, and manages the barn for their monthly dairy cattle sale.

Don is also active within his community and continues to support the Dairy Science Club. The club honored Don as the 1993 Outstanding Young Dairyman for his continued involvement in club activities, as well as his success within the dairy industry since graduating from Penn State.

William R. Davey Award

The William R. Davey Award is presented annually to an outstanding senior in dairy science. This year's recipient was Terri Packard of Bradford County. The daughter of Richard and Marilyn Packard, Terri was among four finalists for the honor. Other finalists were Lynette Goodling of Selinsgrove, Tom McCauley of Elizabethtown, and Matthew Wanner of Narvon.

The award was established in memory of William R. Davey, who served as assistant professor of dairy science at Penn State from 1949 until his death in 1958. The candidates and winner of the Davey Award are chosen by Department of Dairy and Animal Science faculty, based on scholarship, leadership, and participation in activities. As the 1993 recipient, Terri received an engraved replica of the Nittany Lion and her name will be placed on the permanent plaque which commemorates the award.

August E. Branding Award

The August E. Branding Award was established to honor a junior within the Dairy Science Club who exhibits the caring, humble, respectful, and unselfish characteristics of Gus Branding. During his career at Penn State, from 1964 until his retirement in 1979, Branding was a teacher, coach, advisor, and researcher.

Receiving the Branding Award this year was Shannon Peterman, an agricultural economics and rural sociology major. Shannon is the daughter of Kendall and Cheryl Peterman of Muncy.

Robert H. Rumler Award

The Pennsylvania Holstein Association presents the Rumler Award in honor of the former executive secretary of the National Holstein Association, now retired in Franklin County. This year's recipient was Terri Packard, who served as Dairy Expo show manager.

The Pennsylvania Holstein Association Award was presented to David Lentz. The award, presented by Ken Raney, was given in recognition of David's work as chairman of the 1992 Nittany Lion Fall Classic Sale.

A new award was given by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association this year. It was presented to Jeff Pirrung of Ulysses in appreciation of his efforts as the chairman of the 1993 Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association Quiz Bowl contest held at the Junior Holstein Convention in Wilkes-Barre.

The Dairy Science Club honored Beth Ann Cooley with a pen set in appreciation of her work as chairman of the 1992 Cheesebox Sale. This year's sale was a record-breaker, with more than 2,300 boxes sold.

Terri Packard and Shannon Peterman received pen sets for their dedication as Co-Editors of the 1993 Penn State Dairyman. Terri and Shannon presented mugs to their business editor, Jeff Pirrung, along with Susan Bove and Lourdes Marcano for their assistance with the publication. The yearbook will be competing at the American Dairy Science Association student affiliate meeting this June in College Park, Md.

Jen Hummel, recently crowned 1993 Penn State dairy princess, received a plaque from 1992 Princess Jodie Everly. Jodie also wished to thank her alternate, Shannon Peterman, and all those who helped make her reign enjoyable.

Disaster Program Allows More Funds, Less Time To Claim

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Farmers whose corn crop quality and quantity was damaged last year may be eligible for federal money, but they have to act quickly.

A broadened application of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's disaster relief program is being offered under the Clinton Administration that takes into account losses experienced by corn growers whose crops didn't mature, went bad, or had to be left in the field.

Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy announced the new assistance program last week, according to a news release from the Harrisburg office of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

However, time is short — producers have only until May 7 to file a written disaster application and should contact a local ASCS office to determine eligibility.

The expansion of the federal disaster program takes into account the loss in value in corn which was unharvestable, and that which was harvested but was mold-damaged, low in feed value, immature, etc.

"Espy said adjustments in production will be made for corn producers who suffered losses from reduced quality caused by damaging weather or related conditions," according to the Harrisburg office's news release.

"This adjusted production will be used to determine whether these corn producers qualify for disaster payments for the first time or for additional payments as applicable," Espy said.

For those who already filed their losses and expected none or a certain amount of disaster relief may find that a recalculation of their losses under the broadened allowance will increase the amount of the relief.

"Corn producers who (already) filed a written disaster application for the corn crop may be entitled to additional payments because of quality production adjustments," Espy said.

Donald Unangst, state executive director of ASCS, said that data gathered so far shows that while Pennsylvania corn production was the highest in five years, at 118.8 million bushels, cool summer temperatures and an early frost caused the majority of the crop to contain excessive moisture and low test weight, thus significantly reduced quality.

Unangst said he expects about 2,000 new or revised applications coming in to county ASCS offices for requests for disaster relief to cover losses from low quality corn, grading No. 4, No. 5, or Sample.

Highly Erodible, Wetlands Programs Explained

In other ASCS announcements, facts sheets were recently made available outlining ASCS sodbuster and swampbuster policy and also detailing requirements for some USDA loans.

The swampbuster and sodbuster provisions are those described under an April 1993-released ASCS Farm Program Fact Sheet, "Production of Crops on Highly Erodible Land or Wetland."

The other fact sheet was concerned with beneficial interest requirements for loans and loan deficiency payments (LDP).

The fact sheet concerning highly erodible land and wetlands states that the protection of highly erodible lands is authorized through the 1990 amendment to the Food Security Act of 1985.

According to the sheet, ". . . the Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act of 1990 discourages the production of crops on highly erodible cropland unless the land is protected from erosion under an approved conservation system.

"If crops are produced on such fields without an approved conservation system, producers may lose their eligibility for most U.S. Department of Agriculture program benefits."

As far as treatment of wetlands, producers will lose USDA benefits if the land being used for crops had been converted from wetlands after Dec. 23, 1985, or, if wetlands have been converted to cropland since Nov. 28, 1990.

Violating the sodbuster and swampbuster provisions of the Farm Bill can affect farmer-eligibility for a number of other ASCS programs.

Those programs affected include the acreage reduction programs; price support loans; multiple peril crop insurance; farm related Farmers Home Administration loans; Commodity Credit Corporation storage payments; disaster assistance, including the emergency conservation program and livestock feed program; conservation reserve program payments; and conservation cost-sharing payments.

According to the fact sheet, "To retain eligibility for USDA benefits, it is important that before producers plant 1993 crops they know" several aspects about their operation.

Included are whether the Soil Conservation Service of USDA has made a highly erodible land (HEL) determination on the land; whether crops and practices to be applied on HEL are authorized under an approved conservation plan; whether all conservation practices that are scheduled in the conservation plan for 1993 are applied on HEL; and whether any of their land was a wet area which was manipulated after Dec. 23, 1985.

Scholarship Winners

Matthew Wanner, a senior in dairy and animal science, was named the winner of the Dairy Shrine Student Award. The son of Alfred and Carolyn Wanner of Narvon, Matthew received a plaque and lifetime membership in the Dairy Shrine.

Seven dairy science students received high academic honors during the program. Awards went to seniors Brent Baker of Martinsburg, Lynetter Goodling of Selinsgrove, Eugene Kreitzer of Fredericksburg, and Tom McCauley of Elizabethtown. Juniors receiving recognition were Roger Keith of Martinsburg and Dave Wascak of Dunbar. Peter Mozes, a sophomore from Greenville, was also recognized.

Judging Contest Results

The awards banquet serves as a culmination of all the year's events for dairy science students at Penn State. It is an opportunity to recognize winners of contests held earlier in the year.

Sid Barnard, coach of the Dairy Products Judging Team, presented a clock to club member Jodie Everly as high individual for 1992.

The Dairy Cattle Judging Team was recognized. The team consisted of Jeff Pirrung, Rebecca Sonnen, Tom Smallback, and Matthew Wanner. They were coached by Dale Olver. They were first in Guernseys at the Eastern States Exposition, first in Ayrshires and Jerseys at the Pennsylvania All-American Contest, and first in Brown Swiss at the National Intercollegiate Contest.

The results of the Spring Judging Contest, held at the Ag Arena on March 20, were also announced. In the collegiate division, Thad Sturgeon of Fombell was high individual overall and Todd Biddle of Boalsburg placed second. In the oral reasons placing, Todd Biddle was first and Thad Sturgeon finished second. The results of the linear evaluation contest were also revealed. Dave Wascak placed first, James Over of Woodbury finished second, and Jayne Hess of Gettysburg was third.

Several 4-H and FFA dairy cattle judging teams were invited to the banquet. Their placings were announced as well.

In the senior 4-H division, the team from Susquehanna County was high team overall and high reasons team. The team members were Josh Harvatine, David Harvatine, Steven Pavelski, and Andrea Garner. High individual overall was Donald Harwood of Franklin County and high reasons individual was David Fava of Washington County.

The junior 4-H division was won by Armstrong County. Team members were Leland Claypool, Roy Claypool, Travis Walker, and Todd Walker. High individual overall was Jessica Whiting of Lawrence County. Jessica Whiting tied with Adam Dean, also of Lawrence County, for high reasons individual honors.

In the senior FFA division, high team overall and high reasons team was Tulpehocken chapter, with team members Andy Bicksler, Melissa Bicksler and Jennifer Grimes. The high individual, for both overall score and reasons, was Andy Bicksler.

The junior FFA division was won by the team from Centre County. Team members were Kenny Brown, Brandy Semestrote, Ryan Connelly, and Trish Watson. High individual overall was Brandy Semestrote of Centre County while high reasons individual honors went to Jess Lawrence of Lawrence County.

Brent Baker served as judging contest chairman and Jeff Hostetter was his assistant. Official judges for the contest were Robert Barley, Gary Bicksler, John Burket, William Curley, Benjamin Dum, Jr., William Lesher, Steve Shaw, Matthew Wanner, and Peter Witmer.

At Last -- A 4-H Center for Chester County

After 25 or 30 years of searching for land and facilities for a 4-H Center in Chester County, the dream is about to be realized. The estate and heirs of Fiorre A. Romano of West Brandywine Township have generously donated 15 acres of land along Route 322 between Guthriesville and Honeybrook. They have also agreed to allow the 4-H Center an option to purchase an additional 5 acres which creates a 20-acre site for activities. The center will be named the Romano 4-H Center.

The 4-H program in Chester County has been very successful over the years, and currently there are 2,577 members and 263 volunteer leaders. One of the main problems, however, has been the lack of a facility to conduct shows, sales, meetings and contests. Events have had to depend on outside facilities, even some outside the county, to conduct programs. By scattering events throughout the area and at different dates, there has been a loss of identity and, most importantly, the interaction between 4-H members in different projects has been non-existent.

Now that the land has been secured, the next step is to construct a facility that can handle the wide range of activities that 4-H encompasses. The plan is to eventually build two pole building, two show rings, and a headquarters building. This main building will have meeting and banquet space, kitchen, showers and community facilities. There is also the possibility to include space for agricultural related agencies. Community groups will be able to use the buildings and grounds for a fee when there are no 4-H events scheduled.

The challenge now is to raise the funds needed to make the center a complete and worthwhile facility for not only 4-H, but for the entire Chester County community. The goal is to raise $750,000 through contributions. The 4-H Center is under the able leadership of Pat Taws, President of the Board of Directors, and Representative Art Hershey, General Campaign Chairman.

It is visualized that, by 1994, a county-wide 4-H Round-Up lasting several days will be held at the site. The positive aspect of having 4-H members together with projects as diverse as dairy cattle and ceramics, or horses and computers, is very important to the development of the young people in Chester County. Youth from all racial, ethnic and socio-economic groups participate in this county's 4-H clubs, and the development of their leadership, maturity, and understanding of others is a key benefit of the 4-H program. So, if someone asks you to help, please consider supporting this worthwhile project that will have a positive effect on Chester County for years to come.

Fundamentals Of Livestock Care

tals of handling cattle, of which Dr. Temple Grandin knows a great deal about.

Grandin is assistant professor, department of animal sciences, at Colorado State University in Fort Collins, Colo. She is internationally known for her studies and recommendations to many cattle producers across the country.

Grandin will speak at the Expo about the "nuts and bolts" of animal handling, including how much personal space to give cattle, knowing their flight zone, and knowing how quickly and inexpensively producers can help solve some of the problems that plague the cattle industry.

"One of the first things producers can do is get rid of slippery floors," Grandin told Lancaster Farming. Also, producers should put solid sides on loading chutes, keep people away from the sides of the chutes, and get workers at stockyards to understand the fundamentals of animal behavior.

A large part of what she'll address, she said, is bull safety. Many of the problems dairy producers face is how to handle bulls, according to Grandin. For many beef producers, bulls are weaned with their mothers. But dairy bulls many times aren't, and could pose real problems in handling in the yard.

In the past, her presentations have helped many producers across the nation benefit, and Grandin said she has heard comments from producers that have achieved results.

Dairy producers can save up to 10 minutes off the milking time if they just take a few extra steps in preparing the cow, according to Dr. Michael J. Gamroth, associate professor of animal sciences and extension dairy specialist at Oregon State University. Gamroth will share his experiences in general milking parlor design and management at the Expo.

Milking parlor design performance and management work hand-in-hand, according to Gamroth. He said that, overall, a clean versus dirty parlor will contribute roughly 15 percent more milk to the tank. He will discus optimal management of the herring bone and parallel type of parlors.

Some of the findings relate to studies in the mid-1980s which reflect what kinds of management techniques are necessary depending on varied herd sizes.

But many of the techniques Gamroth will demonstrate come as a result of what is learned at the milking schools conducted yearly by the Oregon State extension offices. The schools, which run over two days, show herd owners and employees the proper procedures before milking. The schools also explain what the somatic cell count is, how mastitis originates, and how to properly treat and manage related herd health problems.

"The schools explain more the 'why' of things rather than the 'how,'" said Gamroth.

The purpose of the Animal Housing Expo is to provide poultry, dairy, and livestock producers an opportunity to see what is available in the form of supplies, equipment, and services related to animal housing.

Featured will be commercial exhibits, demonstrations, and educational displays.

General chair of the Expo is Dan F. McFarland, Penn State Cooperative Extension, 112 Pleasant Acres Rd., York, PA 17402-9041, (717) 757-9657. Exhibits chair is Leon Hoover, 410 East Lincoln Avenue, Myerstown, PA 17067-7565, (717) 866-7565.

Busy Sisters Juggle School And Business

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BOSWELL (Somerset Co.) — They tried band. They tried tap dance. They tried baton. But it was discovering livestock that finally dispelled the fog for sisters, Rachael and Greta Mostoller, and revealed their agricultural niche.

The discovery came a number of years ago, during their early teens, and after some learning experiences at the local county fair with early 4-H livestock projects.

The young women, who have no other siblings, began to build their own registered club calf herd. Registered lambs were added and the enterprise became Mostoller Club Calves and Lambs, a business in which Rachael and Greta share great pride. Quality is the priority.

Small wonder, too, since they sold the 1992 Somerset County bred steer which was owned and shown by Dan Ferko of Central City.

Even though both girls are in school during the week — Rachael to the West Virginia University at Morgantown and Greta pursuing a career in nursing — their mother, Peggy Mostoller, leaps into the breach in the interim. Mostoller Club Calves and Lambs is playing a major role in financing the girls college education.

Their business stock includes registered Angus and crossbred club calves and breeding stock, and registered Suffolk club lambs and breeding sheep.

These very liberated businesswomen know their profession and if there's one thing that can cause them to grit their teeth, it's when a potential customer arrives to talk about a sale, but directs the comments and eye contact to Butch Mostoller, the sisters dad.

"When some people come to buy," said Greta, "they won't talk to us, they look at Dad ... and Dad's a salesman! He's had a long career selling heavy equipment.

"Our cows are used to women, so are the lambs," said Greta. "They are not used to men."

The sisters do everything themselves, when possible, for economic reasons, even some veterinary work and the sheep shearing.

And Rachael, a senior majoring in agriculture, with some prestigious honors in her field, does the breeding after making the selections herself — a big bonus to their business.

Rachael and Greta talk freely about their unfamiliarity of show animal qualities when first starting to show animals. Those were the first painful steps to future success for their profited speedily from their mistakes.

"Our first two years showing, ours were the worst animals there," said Greta.

In fact, one time the judge was overheard commenting that her steer needed roller skates under its back, she said.

Rachael said she began showing pigs and horses before getting interested in steers. Not knowing any better, she started with a Hereford Charolais that was short and fat.

Greta said her first steer project caused her so much anxiety that she sold it a few months before the fair.

But both girls got blue ribbons for showmanship during the early days and said they were so proud.

"In 4-H everybody wants everybody else to be good and and they helped us," recalls Greta, now a 4-H leader herself, in the Steaks and Chops 4-H club.

"4-H is like one big family," she said."

The following year, having learned the importance of proper feeding and exercise, Greta then 13, showed Herschel, a superb steer that became the grand champion, and sold for $9,000, to set and retain the Somerset County Fair Steer sale record.

"It was a family champion," says Greta. She said the whole family was involved in exercising him and pampering him. In fact, it was he, Herschel, who was memorialized with a highway in his honor. The Herschel highway is the mile-long, farm field track where all the Mostoller steers are exercised, beginning with the first beautiful champion.

Shortly thereafter, the girls joined the county junior livestock judging team. The knowledge they gained is one of their best assets, when purchasing livestock.

Additionally, it laid the foundation for Rachael's burgeoning success as an up-and-coming professional livestock judge. Her college junior year was financed through a full scholarship she and another person won in the West Virginia Collegiate Livestock Judging competition.

Rachael showed pigs and steers, but unlike her sister, who liked black, she had a decided preference for red steers. Often a class winner, Rachael could never pull a grand champion title. Until her steer won the 1987 Bedford County Jackpot Show. In 1989 she had the reserve grand champion in the Kingwood, W.Va. Jackpot Show. Her pigs also won class titles.

Greta was to have two more grand champion steers at the Somerset Co. Fair, in 1989 and 1991. Each had its own personality. She says one steer developed a bogus limp for attention. The last one, she said, had behaved with perfect show manners and had the heart of a real champion.

"Our steers were always spoiled," says Greta. "We babied them. When they needed shots we made Dad give them so the steers wouldn't think we were mean," she grinned.

The partners said they always used their money together for bettering their stock, to buy needed equipment, and also to save a portion for their college education.

Five years ago they had built a fine enough herd to start selling market calves. While the sisters were in high school and the business wasn't yet a real business, their mother would watch over the animals during school hours.

If an emergency arose leaving Peggy perplexed for a solution, she would telephone the girls at school. Occasionally, it meant requesting permission to leave school.

In small districts there are few secrets and it wasn't long before the Mostollers became known amongst the student body as the "Ingalls Sisters," as in "Little House On The Prairie," a former, homespun television show. Occasionally, Peggy's telephone S.O.S. to her daughters was announced over the school's P.A. system, unnecessarily alerting all and sundry that, perhaps a ewe was ready to deliver.

The Mostollers feel a sense of commitment to the 4-H program. And helping current young 4-Hers, they believe, is merely a return on what 4-H invested in them.

Rachael says that after the county fair they select the best of their stock to sell to a 4-H or FFA member. They sell only what they, themselves, would want to buy.

"We help people at the fair to fit their calves," she said. With each sale of stock they follow-up with year-round contact, giving tips about feed and exercise.

Disagreements do arise between the business partners, they said, but never last long, because their senses of humor quickly dispel the static of a charged atmosphere.

Both were ten-year members of the Steaks and Chops 4-H Club of which Greta, and their parents, are now leaders. Both women attended the 4-H Club Congress in Chicago and the 4-H Conference in Washington, D.C. Each was once named Somerset County Outstanding 4-Her and Farm Credit Outstanding 4-H club member.

Rachael assists in teaching livestock judging at WVU and is anticipating the opportunity of judging a horse show later this summer in West Virginia. Landing a job in a county extension office is her desire. If not that, then she wants other work in the livestock industry.

When she one-day marries and has children, Greta says she wants them to learn the livestock business. It isn't merely an idle thought. Her goal is to build a solid business — quality and quantity — that can be passed to a new generation of her own. And Mother Peggy couldn't be more delighted with her daughter's train of thought.

The first pond on the Mostoller Farm, makes a pretty background scene as Greta and Rachael Mostoller, encourage the family dogs to behave. The dogs, from left are Katie, Beatrix and Clementine.

Refinancing Info

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension is offering a seminar "Refinancing your Home Mortgage" Wednesday, May 19 at 7:00 PM. It will be held at the Montgomery County 4-H Center, 1015 Rt. 113 in Creamery.

For several months, interest rates have been low, and there is some indication that they may be going even lower. What factors do you need to consider if you are thinking about refinancing? Should you refinance to get a lower monthly payment or to pay the mortgage off sooner? What are the tax consequences? How long will it take before you see a benefit from refinancing? These and other questions will be discussed.

For registration information, please call Penn State Cooperative Extension at 489-4315.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

When it comes to enjoying the attributes of May, nothing beats a porch.

Porches - or decks, or patios - are great places to "hang out." Many of my pleasant childhood memories are linked to the porch on the home in which I grew up, shaded through the summer months by three stately maple trees.

On a classic porch swing, I spent hours reading and practicing needlework skills like embroidery and knitting. (Boy, does that date me!) The porch was also a handy place for the likes of shelling peas, nipping string beans or folding laundry while still enjoying the outdoors.

From it we could observe the drama of the changing seasons, played out on the panoramic stage of a neighbor's farm which spanned the deep valley below us. It gave a vantage point to learn about planting and harvest, the difference between corn and alfalfa and wheat, and an understanding of farm equipment.

Looking back, it must have been there that my love of "country" took root.

To have a porch on our farmhouse is a bonus I've grown to appreciate more with each passing year.

Just outside the kitchen, our porch is an extended dining area through the warm months, offering a perfect excuse to linger there a few moments. And, like the porch of my childhood, it overlooks the panorama of farm activity.

Central in the view at the moment is the mid-pond nursery, where Mama Goose patiently waits out the hatching of this year's flock-to-be. Pap Goose keeps relentless vigil on the bank, regularly flapping off intruders such as the dog, a tractor moving bales of hay or the manure truck.

He takes great pride in chasing off the farm equipment from his territory. It seems to give him as much satisfaction as re-routing the two trespasser geese, which regularly cruise in about dusk to land on "his" pond.

Porch-perching provides a chance to watch the heifers returning single file from the meadow to dine at the feed bunk and the dairy cows grazing in the exercise lots. On occasion, the binoculars kept just inside the door are handy for a more close-up look at those cows that delight in scaring us by stretching out on their sides in the green grass for naps.

More than once while doing a porch pasture scan, I've had a cow mentally dead and buried, when the snoozer calmly sat back up, still chewing a cud.

The binoculars are also kept close to the porch door to admire the birds, like the goldfinchs. Goldfinches have returned to the bird feeder with the onset of porch weather, their feathering changed from wintry grey-brown to a brilliant, almost neon, yellow. We saw few goldfinches all winter; perhaps there are fewer feeders kept filled as the year turns into May and they've just now discovered our sunflower stash.

From the porch, equipment traveling the meadow-field road can be spotted and field work progress monitored. Passage of chisel or plow, planter or drill, raybine, rake or combine gives clues to who's doing what field chore in which direction. Often on super-busy days, it's the only way to have any notion of what's going on.

And, from the second-floor porch vantage point, garden, flower and yard growth can be assessed from a more distant, encompassing view. A bush to be trimmed here, or cluster of weeds to yank there - or that the lawn needs mowed. Again. And to get the skippers I missed the last round.

On warm mornings, The Farmer often grabs a quick breakfast or after-milking snack on the porch while mentally plotting the day's job lineup. Sometimes, we roast hotdogs there after dark. Solomon snoozes his days away there on an old rug, and the cats enjoy its sunny shelter.

In May, when the hours and days are just too short for all that needs doing, it's especially nice to sneak a brief time-out on the porch.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Today is May first — often called May Day. When I went to school it was a day to look forward to as a May Queen would be crowned on the front lawn of the school. It was the most colorful event of the day with a maypole and its bright ribbons.

There were other activities too as a program from 1932 mentions a "reading" contest and spelling bees for the first six grades. In the afternoon there were field events and the different schools in the township competed. I remember being in a relay race and running so fast that I fell and got cinders in my knees.

The prices of food in the cafeteria were all listed on the program. Here are a few of them: soup 7¢, mashed potatoes 6¢, creamed corn 6¢, tuna fish salad 10¢, fruit salad 10¢, baked custard 6¢, spaghetti 7¢, deviled egg salad 10¢, maple nut tapioca 6¢, and coffee 5¢.

There were stands set up outside the school where a few pennies would buy a souvenir. In the evening the different classrooms were open for parents to view the exhibits that their children had made.

However, this May Day will probably find me in the garden hoeing the peas that I planted three weeks ago. And, we have a lot of strawberries to keep weeded. I have destroyed my old bed of berries after moving some of the bigger plants. It always bothers me when we plow under living plants, even if it is only something like feverfew, tarragon, lemon tea or chives that are growing where we do not want them.

Recipes That Don't Give Your Bones A Break

"Have you been giving your bones a break lately?" Melissa Spory, from Boswell, asks people.

Melissa is the Somerset County Dairy Princess and she believes that question is important enough to ask every time you sit down to eat.

That's because every person has 206 bones in his or her body, and every single bone needs calcium everyday. "Everyday bone tissue changes. New bone is added and old bone is broken down and removed. Calcium is combined with other minerals to form a framework that gives strength to bones. If the calcium was removed from your bones, they couble be bent and twisted like a pretzel."

Calcium not only makes strong healthy bones but also helps your heart to beat, your muscles to work, and your blood to clot. Since calcium is not produced in your body, it has to be supplied in your diet. If it isn't supplied, your body will take calcium out of your bones and into the blood to continue to functioning properly. When this happens often, bones become brittle and osteoporosis, a bone-thinning disease may be the result.

This gradual weakening of the bones is not only tragic but preventable. Try these calcium-rich recipes and don't give your bones a break.

EAT ALONE, EAT WELL

Individuals who live alone can be divided, by diet, into two distinct groups. At one extreme are those who plan, shop and prepare meals with the same vigor as if they were cooking for a family of four. At the other extreme are those whose refrigerators may contain nothing more than a jar of mustard, a loaf of tired bread, a stick of margarine and a six-pack of diet soda.

If you, or someone you care about, fits into the latter category, it's time to consider a change.

When eating alone, we frequently do not bother fixing a nutritious, balanced meal. Instead we grab whatever's quick and handy: leftovers, snacks or over-processed convenience foods. Sometimes the meal consists of only one kind of food rather than an appetizing mix. Fruits and vegetables get forgotten in the rush.

This type of dining can affect not only the composition of the meal but the whole experience as well. Such a repast might be eaten standing over the sink, in front of the television, while reading or on the run. Food is consumed either rapidly, absentmindedly, or both, rather than in a relaxed manner in which each bite is savored. And thanks to the microwave, you can place processed food in the oven, wait for the bell, eat it and, presto, you're done, practically before you can say "Bon Appetit."

Nearly everyone eats this way on occasion. But when the catch-as-catch-can style becomes a regular habit, you may need to work on improving your nutritional profile.

Planning is the key. When you go to the supermarket, use a basic checklist. Included should be leafy greens and yellow vegetables, citrus fruits, low-fat dairy products, meats, fish, eggs, poultry, dried beans and peas, as well as whole-grain or enriched breads and cereals and rice and grain products such as pastas. Make your selections with these important categories in mind.

Plan to use highly perishable fruits and vegetables early in the week. Later in the week, you can depend on frozen vegetables. Buy these in pourable bags, which are easier to re-close than boxes.

Plan ahead in cooking, too. Think in broader terms than just meal by meal. If you bought larger amounts of ingredients (an economical way to shop), you can cook extra servings and store them for future use. Pasta sauces or soups can be kept in the freezer in microwave containers for defrosting later on. Along with pasta, salad and a piece of fresh fruit, they make a delicious, nutritious meal. Or cook a sizable pot of beef stew, which will serve you in good stead for two or three days. Any extra will last several months in the freezer.

Some people find it convenient to do this type of larger-scale cooking on the weekend. If you are having a guest for a meal, you can also cook extra servings at that time and store them for later use. An added advantage to relying on your freezer in this way: If you decide to go out for dinner on the spur of the moment, your food will keep just fine. Or, if you invite a friend home you will have plenty to share.

The main message is that while spontaneity in many matters adds zest to life, a little foresight in the supermarket and advance work in the kitchen allows you to shop more economically and eat more nutritiously. It also gives your solo meal a touch of class. After all, who deserves it more than you?

Dairy Promotions Chalk Up Increased Sales

EL PASO, TEXAS — Dairy products got a boost in sales during the promotion of chocolate milk and cheese during late 1992 according to market research conducted by the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board and UDIA.

In the second hald of 1992, the National Dairy Board aired chocolate milk advertising in the top 100 markets, targeting households with kids and teens ages 6-17. Sixty-eight markets saw heavy advertising, 32 markets saw moderate advertising and the remainder received little to no chocolate milk advertising.

During the promotion, chocolate milk sales climbed 17.4 percent in the 68 markets where heavy advertising aired, 4.5 percent in the 32 markets receiving moderate advertising, and 1.1 percent in areas where little to no advertising was run.

However, since ready-to-serve chocolate milk accounts for only 4 percent of total fluid sales, the Board also measured sales of white milk and chocolate additives (syrups and powder). Total milk sales in the markets where the promotion ran were up 0.9 percent while markets receiving moderate or no advertising saw volume declines of 7 to 14 percent. In addition, sales of chocolate additives increased 5 to 8 percent, indicating additional success of the promotion.

The Board aired a 30-second TV commercial and offered a 60-second radio commercial and in-store promotion materials to state and regional promotion groups, chocolate milk processors and retail stores.

"To avoid 'cannabilizing' white milk sales which tend to dominate during mealtime, the Board positioned chocolate milk as a satisfying snack," said Bill Underwood, New York dairy farmer and chair of the Board's advertising and sales promotion committee. "Our chocolate milk promotion seemed to stem declines in milk consumption, so we are developing a similar campaign for next fall."

Last fall, the National Dairy Board joined UDIA in their fall cheese promotion, "Cheese Snack Facts." Data from retail stores and in-home research panels show that the promotion, which ran for eight weeks from mid-September through mid-November, sold more cheese.

In grocery stores with electronic scanners, cheese sales increased 2.6 percent during the promotion over sales for the same period last year. That increase represents 6.1 million pounds of cheese.

In a study that looked at in-home consumption based n a three-year trend, sales increase 12.3 million pounds or 4.5 percent over expected volume during the promotion period.

"We (National Dairy Board members) were pleased with those increases in cheese sales," Underwood said. "So the Board has decided to join UDIA for another fall cheese promotion with details to be developed."

Pork Bar-B-Que

2 cups diced cooked pork roast or turkey
1 onion, chopped finely
½ cup catsup
¼ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon mustard
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
Water, to keep meat from sticking to the bottom of the pan.

Combine all ingredients. Simmer for 20 to 30 minutes. Serve on rolls.

Deborah writes that this is a wonderful way to use left-over pork roast or turkey.

Country Fair Barbecue Sandwich

2½ pounds boneless chuck roast
2½ pounds boneless pork shoulder
2 quarts water
2 ribs celery, cut in large pieces
1 large onion, cut in large pieces
2 carrots, cut in large pieces
2 small bay leaves
8 whole cloves
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
12 buns

BARBECUE SAUCE:

2 tablespoons butter
1 cup chopped onion
1½ cups meat stock
1 cup catsup
½ cup cider vinegar
⅓ cup sugar
1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 teaspoons celery salt
2 teaspoons paprika
½ teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon cumin
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Place meat, vegetables and seasonings in large roaster. Cover and bake for 3 hours. Remove pork and continue baking beef another hour or until tender. Shred and cut meats into bite-size pieces while still warm. In large heavy saucepan, saute butter and onion for sauce until the onion is transparent. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Add shredded meats. Simmer over low heat until mixture is quite thick but still juicy. This will take about 15 minutes. Don't stir too often so the meat stays in good-sized pieces. Serve on hot buns.

Linda Howell writes that this recipe requires time to prepare but is worth the effort because it tastes wonderful.

Off-Flavors Affect Dairy Products

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The majority of flavor defects in dairy products could be corrected by changing industry practices, possibly boosting dairy product consumption, says a dairy products specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Off-flavors affect many dairy products, including butter, cheddar and cottage cheese and ice cream," says Sidney E. Barnard, professor of food science. "The dairy industry can prevent and eventually eliminate most flavor defects."

Barnard supervised evaluations of store-purchased dairy products made by students in dairy product judging classes and the Penn State Dairy Product Judging Team. "Evaluations done by students and judging team members over the past two years indicate that the majority of defects originate with milk or dairy ingredients."

The evaluations found that 60 percent of the 62 butter samples, mostly USDA Grade AA, had stale, soapy or tallowy tastes. More than 90 percent of those 37 pronounced flavor defects were due to old cream, rancidity or oxidation.

"Preventing these problems is a matter of changing current handling practices among dairy producers, processors, store employees and consumers," Barnard says.

Forty-six percent, or 48 of 105 packages, of cheddar cheese samples had pronounced flavor defects."These defects caused the cheese to taste fruity, fermented, bitter, soapy, tart or like sulfide," Barnard says.

Extension faculty and students purchased 346 samples of vanilla ice cream during 1992. "Ninety-five samples, or 27 percent, had pronounced flavor defects," Bernard says. "These defects made the ice cream taste tallowy. Students reported that some samples tasted like graham crackers or cardboard." Barnard believes that more than 60 percent of these off flavors originated in dairy ingredients that were old, oxidized or contained whey.

Barnard and trained students evaluated 126 creamed cottage cheese samples, most of which contained 4 percent milkfat. "Forty-three samples, or 34 percent, had pronounced flavor defects," he says. "These defects made the samples taste soapy, stale, bitter, fruity or fermented. Over 85 percent of these defects probably originated in the milk or during processing."

Nearly all pronounced dairy product flavor defects can be prevented. "The key is to keep processing plants and their employees informed and trained in the latest sanitation and processing techniques," Barnard says. "The challenge before the dairy industry is to reduce defects and improve consumer acceptance."

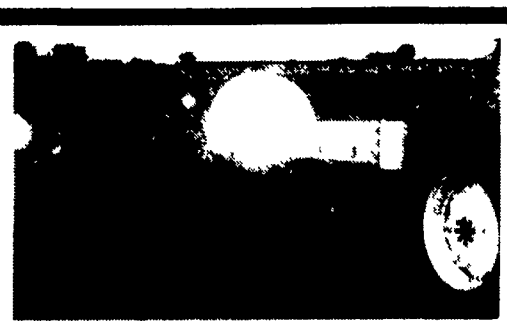
TOP 10 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BUY A TANCO BALE WRAPPER



TANCO	COMPETITION
1. Five (5) points of support on turntable: Four heavy duty rollers add stability and support to the perimeter of the turntable in addition to the main central shaft. This allows Tanco wrappers to safely wrap the heaviest silage bales on rough or uneven ground.	Competition uses one central shaft to support the entire turntable mechanism.
2. Single solid belt on turntable: The single belt enables Tanco wrappers to effectively wrap misshapen or soggy bales providing a positive surface for bale rotation.	Competition uses either no belts between rollers, or multiple belts which can allow bales to sag and slip.
3. Adjustable extendable axle: On trailed models the extendable axle provides a wide, stable wheel base when loading bales. Eliminates the need for counterweights.	Competition must add counterweights or tandem axles as options to effectively handle silage bales.
4. Top rollers on turntable: Extra rollers provide security to keep bales in place when wrapping at high RPM's (25) or on uneven terrain.	Competition - None.
5. Unloading ramp on trailed models: The ramp allows bales to be unloaded gently. When a wrapped bale falls hard it can "burp". Once it "burps" the bale does not re-seal. The ramp gives a smooth transition between the ground and turntable.	Competition - optional drop mats are available.
6. Turntable braking System: When unloading wrapped bales its important that the turntable doesn't move out of position. A twisted turntable can offload a bale crooked, exposing it to possible tearing of plastic on frame parts. Tanco machines are equipped with a braking system that holds the turntable in place when unloading bales.	Competition - either no system, or rely on hydraulics to hold the turntable.
7. Film indexing system: As temperature rises, plastic stretches more. To ensure proper overlap and complete coverage when it's hot outside, Tanco machines are equipped with an exclusive, simple, indexing system to compenstate for those times. The operator can eliminate potential "windows" in the wrapping procedure.	Competition - None.
8. Positive bale positioning: while being wrapped, bales are rotated the exact distance required to obtain optimum coverage.	Competition uses continuous hydraulic advance. Bales can slip or over-rotate giving an uneven wrap.
9. Durability: Tanco's subframe is the heaviest of any machine available in North America. The low profile design keeps silage bales closer to the ground with a low center of gravity for stability. Tanco's features are the result of years of experience and input from hundreds of individual, and commercial users in Europe.	Competition - Compare.
10. Prices: From a basic 3 point Model AW200, to the trailed Model AW400 with automatic cut & start, bale and batch counter, and tractor seat controls, Tanco prices for 1993 are lower than ever. Pay less for more features and durability than any other bale wrapper on the market.	Competition - Compare.

Students Learn Pigs Aren't Stupid

ERIC LEWIS
Special to Lancaster Farming

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — The students line up in eager anticipation to see the slightly hairy little creature. The little animal scarcely makes a sound as each student files past and pets the three-month-old pig on the back and head. Most laugh, some are expressionless, but all enjoy the experience.

For some fourth grade students at John Beck Elementary in Lititz, it was the first time they saw a pig up close, let alone pet one. It is for this reason that Sue Pfautz and Roger and Grace Moyer volunteered to participate for three days recently inr the program called "Ag in the Classroom".

"I don't think people today really know where their food comes from," said Roger Moyer, a Lititz poultry farmer. "What we are trying to do is make the connection with the food they see in the store and what they eat to where it comes from."

While the Moyer's showed one group of fourth graders the process chickens and eggs go through to reach the kitchen refrigerator, Sue Pfautz was explaining to another group the various uses of pigs and how pigs are raised.

At the end of Pfautz's presentation, she surprised the students by bringing a three month old pig out and allowing the students to pet the little animal, while the Moyers' group had a taste of some hard-boiled eggs.

"Agriculture is the number one industry in Lancaster County. It is important in everyday life," said Pfautz, coordinator of the program. "You don't have to be raised on a farm to be involved with agriculture."

A couple of students admitted that they really did not know much about farming and the animals that they see or hear daily.

Shawn Ryan, fourth grader at John Beck, did not realize that the 200 pound porkers he sees in the area are the third most intelligent animals behind dolphins and monkeys. "I always thought that (pigs) were a little stupid, but they are really not. I also learned how pigs are raised and how eggs are produced."

Barnaby Yoder, another fourth grader, learned much also. "I learned how a chicken house looks and how eggs are produced. I also found out that pigs are the third smartest animal."

The program also held a one-hour tour of the Marvin Witmer farm, Clay Rd, Lititz. Witmer discussed milk production and showed the students the barn, cows, feed, milking systems, etc.

Other aspects of agriculture covered were types of farm machinery by Rick Pfautz of Binkley and Hurst Bros. Milk nutrition was discussed by Lancaster County dairy princess Jill Harnish, of Christiana and alternate Heather Becker of Narvon. The activities and aspects of FFA (Future Farmers of America) were presented by Donald Nissley, a senior at Warwick High School.

Three hundred and twenty-six fourth grade students from John Beck, Lititz and Kissel Hill Elementary schools were involved in the activities and presentations that covered portions of a three day period last week.

"Farming has changed greatly in the past number of years," said Pfautz. "It is a science today. You have to be very precise to remain competitive."

The Moyers' agreed with Pfautz. Roger said, "If people would see the computer systems farmers have now, they would realize how complicated farming is. The programs farmers use are just as sophisticated as any other business computer. It is a business now."

Fourth grade students pet a pig during an Ag in the Class room demonstration.

Bedford Selects Two For Wool Promotion

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

SCHELLSBURG (Bedford Co.) — Tracy Henderson, daughter of Wayne and Elissa Henderson of Schellsburg, was selected "Lamb and Wool Queen," of Bedford County at the annual banquet held recently.

First runner-up is Tracy's good friend and fellow shepherd, Laurie Bero, daughter of Edward and Rosemary Bero of Alum Bank.

Tracy is the quite proud owner of 75 Romney, Corriedale, and Natural Colored sheep. She has won many awards in competition at the Bedford County Fair, Maryland State Sheep and Wool Competition, KILE, and the Spomerset County Jackpot Show. She also participated in the Keystone Stud Ram and Ewe sale.

Laurie Bero, left, first runner-up, and Tracy Henderson, Bedford County Lamb and Wool Queen, pose with three of Tracy's sheep, Onyx, Olympia, and Obelia. All three sheep will be the center of Tracy's sheep competition this year.

Tracy and Laurie spinning wool. Tracy's cat likes to get in on the act.

Her proudest moments in sheep competition came with winning Master Shepherd at Somerset and first place in the lead line at Maryland.

Laurie owns 30 to 35 tunis Suffolk Crossbreeds or Commercial Sheep. She has likewise competed in the Bedford County Fair, Maryland State Sheep Wool Festival, and the Somerset County Jackpot Show.

Her outstanding awards have been as master fitter and showman at the Bedford County Fair for several years.

Both girls raise their sheep for meat, selling the wool, and saving some for themselves to do their own spinning.

Both are excellent spinners and belong to a local wool spinning organization. They also knit and have a wardrobe of handknitted sweaters.

"We've done everything from shearing to knitting," says Tracy. Local sheep shearer, Karl Kaufman has been giving the girls lessons in shearing and says they both do a good job.

The girls, both freshmen at Chestnut Ridge High School and members of the Chestnut Ridge FFA, are presently working hard for the upcoming Maryland event. "It's a special time," Tracy says. "We compete with more than 1,000 sheep."

Maryland's State Sheep and Wool competition is held the first weekend in May at the Howard County Fairgrounds. In addition to the competition, there will be demonstrations of many wool related crafts.

The Bedford County Sheep and Wool producers will hold their annual field day event in July at the Bedford County Fairgrounds.

Local officers include Brian Barclay, president; Rodney Fisher, vice president; and Sharon Weaver, secretary/treasurer. Board members are Michelle Fisher and Ada Myers.

Single-colored pansies work best because they "have more impact, more bang for the buck, for their roadside recognition," said Bruce Hellerick, Lancaster extension agent, second from left, who showed the Idea Garden to Master Gardeners. He said that gardeners should choose the single color that best fits into the landscape.

The Multifloral, Mellifluous, Memorable Pansy

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — When considering robust, colorful, fragrant flowers for the home or office gardenscape, don't forget that 1993 is the Year of the Pansy.

These "face"-like flowers, with single blooms and five petals rounded in shape, come in a multitude of colors and some are very fragrant.

The National Garden Bureau recently designated this year as the Year of the Pansy, a delicate looking flower that is "quite durable and a flower for all seasons," according to the bureau's Pansy Fact Sheet.

A plethora of pansies were on hand to greet visitors last week at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. Many of the extension's Master Gardener graduates literally "pitched in" and helped festoon the outside of the Farm and Home Center building with the fragrant — and would you believe edible? — blooms.

Bruce Hellerick, extension agent, said the pansy is an underrated plant in many landscapes. "One of the things the Idea Garden is trying to foster is to show how beautiful the pansy is and how useful it can be to any landscape," he said.

For many home gardeners, indeed, the challenge rests in trying to come up with the right color combinations. Single-colored pansies work best because they "have more impact, more bang for the buck, for their roadside recognition," said Hellerick.

He said that gardeners should choose the single color that best fits into the landscape.

If the gardener prefers fragrance over roadside eye appeal, then they should select the yellow or blue pansies, which seem to have the strongest scent, according to the fact sheet.

In general, according to the sheet, the history of the pansy is linked to the viola, its ancestor. The word pansy comes from the French "pensee," which means "thought or remembrance."

Pansy blooms are single with five petals that are rounded in shape. The flowers have one of three basic color patterns. Blooms can be a single, clear color, such as yellow or blue. A second pattern is a single color having black lines radiating from the center — these are called penciling and are similar to viola markings. The last type is familiar to most home gardeners — the bloom has a dark center called a "face."

Colors include red, purple, blue, bronze, pink, black, yellow, white, lavender, orange, apricot, and mahogany. The plant itself is compact, not more than nine inches in both height and spread, and bears many stems. Varieties include large (3½ to 4½ inches), medium (2½ to 3½ inches), and multiflora (1½ to 2½ inches). Most are in series, including Crystal Bowl, Accord, Imperial, Majestic, Crown, Maximum, and Universal.

According to Hellerick, the pansies represent a test of hardiness conducted at the center. Transplants from four-inch pots, market packs (six plants in a pack), and bareroots were used. The four-inch pot transplants, because of their large root system, did the best, followed by the market packs, and lastly by the bareroot plants (many of which died).

Pansies are available most garden centers for up to $2 for a six-pack.

In a few weeks, other new plants with the idea garden will come into bloom, according to Hellerick, including the Calendulas ("pot marigolds") and Dianthus (a single carnation-like flower).

The National Garden Bureau recently designated this year as the Year of the Pansy, a delicate looking flower that is quite durable and a flower for all seasons, according to the bureau's Pansy Fact Sheet. A plethora of pansies were on hand to greet visitors last week at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

Wernersville Culinary Caper Will Delight Taste Buds

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

WERNERSVILLE (Berks Co.) — What do you get when you put together 10 pounds of leeks, five to seven pounds of red potatoes, five gallons of chicken broth, two gallons of milk, two pounds of butter, and five or so cups of flour?

Enough leek and potato soup to feed about 500 — small samples, of course, said Chef Doug Folk of The American House in Stouchsburg.

Why 500 people? That's how many are expected to pass through the home of Susan and Stratton Yatron, 422 Hill Road, on Monday, May 17, from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The occasion is the club's "Culinary Caper," a fund-raising project of the Junior and Senior Woman's Clubs of Wernersville. Seven homes in the borough and surrounding townships are scheduled for the tour, which participants can take at their leisure during the day.

Special treats in each of the buildings will be culinary samples from some of the area's restaurants.

"We just went to some of our favorite places and asked them to participate," said Phyllis Daniels, president of the club, about how the restaurants were chosen.

"The chefs are the main focus of the tour," said Marlene Ochs, chairman of the event. Other food samples along the tour include scallop dishes, pastry and desserts, she said.

Floral arrangements by several area florists also will grace each building.

Some of the homes, such as that of the Yatron's, are historic, which dates back to 1854. The first building on the tour, the Lerch Tavern along Penn Avenue, was built in 1797 to accommodate travelers.

It is listed on the Pennsylvania Inventory of Historic Buildings, the National Register of Historic Buildings, and the Berks County Conservancy. Cookies from Charlie's Bakery will be served here, and floral arrangements from Layser's Florists of Myerstown will be on display.

Other's, such as the sample home of Green Valley Estates II, is designated as "Mansion" style with many modern amenities.

Food samples here will be prepared by the chef of Crystal Springs Restaurant in Sinking Spring, and floral arrangements are by Green Valley Nursery and Florist, Sinking Spring.

The purpose for the tour of homes is to raise funds to improve the community, specifically the construction of a children's play unit in Greth Memorial Park, said Phyllis Daniels, president of the club.

A scrumptious leek and potato soup is easy to make, following the directions of Chef Doug Folk of The American House, Stouchsburg, as he chops the main ingredient, leeks. Learning some tricks of the chef's trade are Susie Yatron, left, whose kitchen Folk is using, and Phyllis Daniels and Marlene Ochs of the Wernersville Woman's Club.

In addition to the three buildings mentioned above, others on the tour are the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fry, 323 Edison St. The original brick structure was built in 1918. It was the first house built in the "new development" of Wernersville Heights.

Baked goods from the Baker's Basket of Fredericksburg will be available for tour-goer's taste buds here. Floral arrangements will be designed by Robesonia Flowers, Inc.

The home of Mr. & Mrs. John Volpe, 14 Weaver Rd., was built in 1986, with each room imaginatively decorated. Food samples will be served by the chef from the Apple Inn of Reading. Floral decorations are by The Floral Studio, Wyomissing.

Hand-hewn logs from the original 1700s structure figure prominently in the refurbished home of Kathy M. Scogna, 695 N. Church Road. Food samples will be presented by the chef of R. John's Olde Haus, Womelsdorf, and floral arrangements are by Davis Florists, Wernersville.

The two-story Victorian style home of Melinda and Dorrald Adolph, 800 N. Church Road, features a six-tiered flower garden. Food samples will be provided by the chef of the Lantern Lodge, Myerstown, and floral arrangements are by The Nosegay, Bernville.

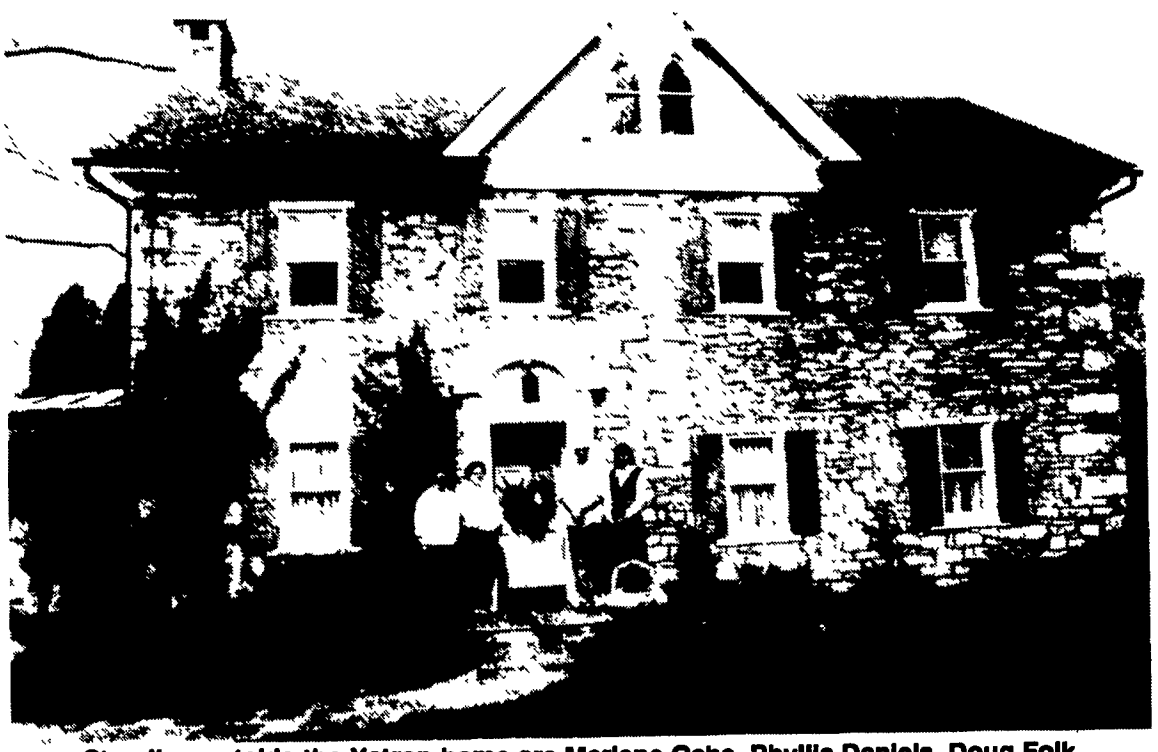
The tour will be held rain or shine. Advance tickets are $7 and can be purchased by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to GFWC Wernersville, 310 N. Walnut St., Wernersville, PA 19565.

These local businesses also have tickets: Keller's Beauty Shoppe, Hummel Florist, Wernersville Public Library, and Davis Florist.

Tickets the day of the event are $8 and can be purchased at Lerch Tavern.

Chef Doug Folk of The American House, Stouchsburg, shows Susie Yatron how to prepare a delicious leek and potato soup. Yatron's home is one of seven stops on the Wernersville Culinary Caper on Monday, May 17, a fund-raising project by the Jr. and Sr. Woman's Clubs of Wernersville.

Committee chairperson Trudy Schultz, left, and garden owner Mary Lou Haddad discuss plans for the third annual garden tour in which eight gardens will be featured.



Standing outside the Yatron home are Marlene Ochs, Phyllis Daniels, Doug Folk, and Susie Yatron. The Yatron home, built in 1854, was renovated in 1988. It is one of seven stops on the Wernersville Culinary Caper on Monday, May 17.

Tour Features Eight Gardens

BOYERTOWN (Berks Co.) — Boyertown Sister Cities will sponsor its third annual Garden Tour on Saturday, May 15, from noon to 5 p.m. Rain date is Sunday, May 16.

Eight garden tours feature a potpourri of horticultural styles. The spacious town property of Mary Lou and Charles Haddad is highlight by stately, mature trees and shrubs, many of which were established by the late Isaac and Margaret Stauffer. A grand oak tree anchors the Boyertown garden of Kathryn and Jack Carver, featuring raised flower beds surrounded by a stone wall and ornamental shrubs and trees, accented with perennials. Neighbors, Betty and Gerald Karver, replaced most of their shrubbery in 1990, and their garden offers spring bulbs, roses, and a mix of annuals and perennials. The spacious garden of Mildren and Kermit Lenhart contains a pond and gazebo and hosts a fascinating variety of shrubbery and trees. Many of the rhododendrons, azaleas, roses, and holly were propagated by the Lenharts in their 30-foot lath house.

Botanical lecturer and field guide, Ann Newbold, established the Glen Flora Preserve as a haven for more than 1,000 species of wild flowers on eight-acres of varied habitat. While walking around the two-acre pond, visitors can enjoy pink lady slippers, yellow moccasin flowers, trilliums, Virginia bluebells, and dame's rockets. Mrs. Newbold will offer guided half-hour tours at 1:00 p.m. and 3:00 p.m. Vicki Benyo, who rents a cabin and cultivates the gardens on the Kathy and Greg Landis property, has added beds with azaleas, rhododendrons, perennials, ferns, ornamental grasses, and annuals. Established holly trees, dogwoods, and fruit trees lend a special touch along with the pond water lilies. Margaret and Willard Stauffer's nineteenth century farmstead boasts attractive, agricultural outbuildings, both stone and vintage cast iron fences, and several well-managed orchards, thriving among mature trees, traditional and unusual shrubbery, and old-fashioned bulbs, perennials, and annuals. Irving and Jennifer Hollingshead will offer refreshments for tour participants and an opportunity to stroll their pond-accented, rural landscape.

Cost of the tour is $8. Tour brochures may be purchased at Gehman's Store in Bally, the Boyertown YMCA, Levengood's Greenhouse, and Kelly's Nursery. For additional information, call (215) 367-8410. All proceeds will benefit the Boyertown Sister Cities program.

NEWMANSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — With polished speeches and every hair in place, 70 FFA'ers participated in the Eastern Regional Public Speaking Contest on Tuesday. Participants needed to place in the top three during county and area competition before advancing to the regional contest, which covers a 19-county area.

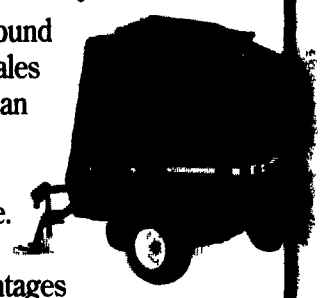
NEW JOHN DEERE 385 ROUND BALER

Here's a half-ton bale that's right down your alley



The new John Deere 385 Round Baler makes 1,050-pound bales 4-feet wide by 5-feet high – an easy fit for inside feeding. They're also perfect for transporting two-bales-wide.

Of course, the new 385 has all the hay-saving advantages made famous by John Deere. The low-profile pickup rides just in front of the baler tires for accurate ground gauging. Side flares and optional converging wheels help guide big or windblown windrows into the large feed opening.

The new 385 also features diamond-tread belts for fast bale starts. The 7-inch-wide belts cover over 90 percent of the bale surface so more leaves stay inside the bale. And with the mechanical monitoring system, it's easy to turn out solid, uniform bales that hold their shape and shed water.

For quality bales that are easy to make, transport, and feed, check out the new 385 Round Baler.

It's Time For The Gypsy Moth

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Late April and early May gypsy moth eggs masses hatch and release a very hungry army of gypsy moth caterpillars. The caterpillars are the destructive stage of the moth. The amount of defoliation over the past three years has been declining. The Bureau of Forestry estimated 640,000 acres of Pennsylvania's woodlands were defoliated by the gypsy moth in 1992. This is down from the 1.2 million acres in 1991 and the 4.3 million acres in 1990.

Depending on local weather conditions, the young hairy caterpillars (larvae) emerge and start a feeding frenzy that lasts about two months. The young caterpillars feed on the foliage night and day where the wind currents can move them about the neighborhood. Then in late May the caterpillars molt again and are about half-grown. At this stage the caterpillars feed only during the night and travel down the tree to seek shade during the daytime. The larvae mature in mid-June to early July, where the larvae pupate and emerge as adult moths. The female moths are white and do not fly whereas the males are buff-colored and fly readily during the day.

Homeowners can reduce damage to their trees and shrubs by finding and destroying the moths' buff-colored egg masses in winter or early spring. To determine potenial for gypsy moth defoliation on your lot you must first count the number of viable egg masses. In several different areas you should stake out a plot (circle) that is 18.5 feet diameter. Count all of the viable egg masses in this area. You may need binoculars to count the egg masses high up in the tree. Multiply this number by 40. Be sure to take counts from several different areas and average the counts. This provides a more representative estimate of the potential for defoliation. Viable egg masses are rigid masses, whereas the soft masses are last years masses that have already hatched. The threshold for potential damage is as follows: residential areas - 250 egg masses per acre and woodlot areas - 500 egg masses per acre.

For residential areas this is only 6-7 egg masses per plot (18.5 feet diameter). The threshold is lower in residential areas because of the droppings from the gypsy moths which litters, cars, decks, walkways, lawn furniture, and people. The defoliation may not be as great but the droppings are unsightly. Also some people are allergic to the caterpillars. The hairs can cause a rash that varies from faint reddish spots to patches of inflamed skin with blister-like wheals. The wheals disappear in 12 to 18 hours and the rash fades in a few days. Children appear to be more prone to the problem than adults.

Homeowners can reduce damage to their trees and shrubs by finding and destroying the moths' buff-colored egg masses in winter or early spring. But if you didn't take that precaution, or if your property is infested by windblown caterpillars from other locations, there are several ways to protect your landscape from defoliation. Penn State entomologist Gregory Hoover says several non-chemical measures have proven effective in controlling the pest. One of the most popular methods is "banding." To do this, in late May encircle the trunk of a tree at chest height with a 14-to 18-inch wide piece of burlap and tie a rope or cord around its middle. Fold the top half down, creating a skirt around the trunk of the tree. Near the end of each day, collect and destroy any caterpillars that have gathered under the flap.

Banding takes advantage of the caterpillars' tendency to come down from the tree during the day and seek a sheltered resting place. "Although I wouldn't recommend this method for a property owner with hundreds of trees, it can significantly reduce defoliation on individual trees in your yard," said Hoover.

Hoover says commercially available barrier tape also can be applied to trees. Barrier tape is treated with a sticky substance that reduces the chance that a caterpillar will gain access to the crown of the tree by climbing the trunk.

Another good defense is to maintain a variety of healthy, vigorous plants that can withstand the stress of gypsy moth feeding and attract songbirds and other natural predators. "Although gypsy moths feed on about 300 varieties of trees and shrubs, they prefer oak," said Hoover. "You'll discourage gypsy moths if you maintain diversity in your landscape." Some species Hoover recommends are ash, dogwood, honeylocust, horse chestnut, mulberry, rhododendron, sycamore and yellow or tulip poplar.

Hoover says there are more than a dozen biological and chemical pesticides available for fighting the gypsy moth. But he cautions that application timing can be critical, and some chemicals may be harmful to certain landscape plants and the gypsy moth's natural enemies. If you choose to use pesticides, be sure to carefully read and follow label instructions.

For more information about the gypsy moth, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

Disaster Program On Crop Corn

YORK (York Co.) — Secretary Espy has announced that a special disaster program on corn is available to producers who experienced reduced crop quality.

The application period is April 14 through May 7. In general, producers who sold grain at grade 5 or "sample" levels will most likely be eligible.

The requirement to purchase 1993 multiperil crop insurance applies if the farm's adjusted production for the crop is less than 35 percent of the expected production. FCIC has extended the 1993 corn sales closing date through May 7.

York County producers who believe they are eligible for this new program should contact the York County ASCS Office at 120 Pleasant Acres Rd., York, PA 17402, (717) 755-2801.

Brillion
MEETS THE CHALLENGE

For Built in Strength Where It Counts — Buy Brillion

BRH RO-CROP CULTIVATORS
4 to 12 Rows

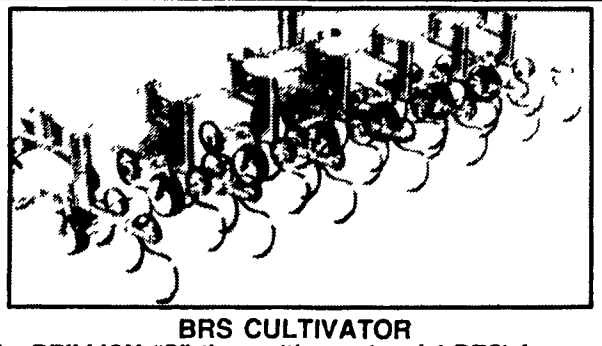
The heart of the BRH Ro-Crop is Brillion's No-Wobble Parallel Linkage. Heavyd uty is an understatement, the linkage for each gang weighs over 50 pounds. Strength where it's needed, a Brillion tradition.

Heavy duty straight edge shanks allow high-speed tillage without throwing dirt or residue.

Underframe shank clearance of 25" allows you more days to cultivate your crops before they get too tall.

The extra long gang frame offers excellent trash clearance, allowing you to handle the heavy residues left from minimum tillage practices.

The rugged yoke mounted gauge wheel offers easy depth adjustment. Simply move the pin to the proper hole you are ready to cultivate.



BRS CULTIVATOR
The BRILLION "S" tine cultivator (model BRS) four-way tooth movement is designed for high speed cultivation, especially in conjunction with chemical weed control. The "S" tines also mulch the soil and level the ground for easier harvesting. Available in rigid or folding models for four to 12 rows.

Hereford Enthusiasts To Tennessee For Showdown

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A "Tennessee Showdown" is awaiting all Hereford enthusiasts at this year's All-American Junior Hereford Expo scheduled July 20-24 in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

The annual event will feature many of the traditional activities, a type conference, as well as provide many opportunities for guests to enjoy the local vacation spots and attractions.

The air conditioned livestock pavilion located on the campus of Middle Tennessee State University will be the site of many of the activities. This year's Expo will feature a special dedication to Cobbler Mountain Farm, Deleplane, Va., owned by Mrs. John Tyssowski, and managed by Henry Sanders. Cobbler Mountain Farm has been a longtime supporter as well as major contributor to the Hereford youth program.

The five-day event will center on the show ring, where junior exhibitors will compete for national recognition in the heifer, bred-and-owned bull, bred-and-owned heifer, steer and cow/calf shows. More than 200 head of cattle representing juniors from 20 states are anticipated to participate in the organization's largest show of the year.

Another show ring activity that will catch everyone's eye is the National Showmanship Contest. The showmanship competition features the top junior Hereford showmen from across the nation. Only one individual per state is allowed to enter the ring to demonstrate his/her fitting and showing skills.

Outside of the show ring, juniors will put their Hereford and cattle knowledge to the test during the quiz bowl contest. The contest consists of a four-member state team answering questions pertaining to the Hereford breed and practices utilized in a day-to-day beef cattle operation. Cattle evaluation skills will be challenged during the judging contest while cooking abilities and creativity will surface during the All-American Cook-Off. "Game Night" will put state against state in a variety of competitive and entertaining events. An educational seminar led by Tina Dodson, Henderson, Tenn., will inform expo participants on ways of promoting beef.

Several juniors will be honored for their outstanding scholastic achievements. Through the support of an anonymous donor, twenty-five - $1,000 scholarships of scholastic merit will be presented to AJHA members who have excelled academically and attend or plan to attend college in the fall of 1993. In addition, the American Hereford Auxiliary will award two outstanding junior members with a $500 John Wayne Memorial Scholarship based upon their scholastic, leadership, and agri-industry involvements.

Junior activities will pause on Friday, July 23, for the Tennessee Type Conference. The day's program is designed to appeal to registered as well as commercial producers and will focus on producing Herefords. Several industry experts from across the nation will be on hand to share their perspectives.

Of course being located in the Heartland of Tennessee and just 30 miles from the country music capitol of the world, Nashville, this year's Expo will offer trips to several of the local attractions and historic sites. In addition, members of the Tennessee Junior Hereford Association are providing a "cattle-sitting" service for a few days after the show to allow everyone the chance to enjoy the beautiful countryside.

The American Junior Hereford Association, American Hereford Association, Tennessee Junior Hereford Association, Tennessee Hereford Association, and many Hereford breeders of surrounding states are co-sponsors of the event. For additional information on this premier summer Hereford event, contact the American Hereford Association, P.O. Box 014059, Kansas City, MO 64101, (816) 842-3757.

Forestry Funds Available

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Richard Troutman, chairman of the Berks County ASC Committee, said cost-share funds are currently available under the Forestry Incentive Program (FIP) to assist farmers in planting trees.

Troutman said the FIP helps increase the nation's supply of timber products by encouraging private, non-industrial forest landowners to plant trees on suitable open lands or cut-over areas, and to perform timber stand improvement work for production of timber.

"Cost-sharing is generally necessary because landowners often cannot afford to make the long-term investment needed to produce crops of timber, he said. Tree planting and timber stand improvements are two of the major practices offered in designated counties.

Troutman said farmers could save thousands of tons of top soil over the next several years by planting trees on idle and marginal cropland, and on other critically-eroded areas. Trees protect the soil, reduce sediment in streams, and increase the value of the land.

Farmers should contact the local ASCS office to request cost-sharing funds for tree planting.

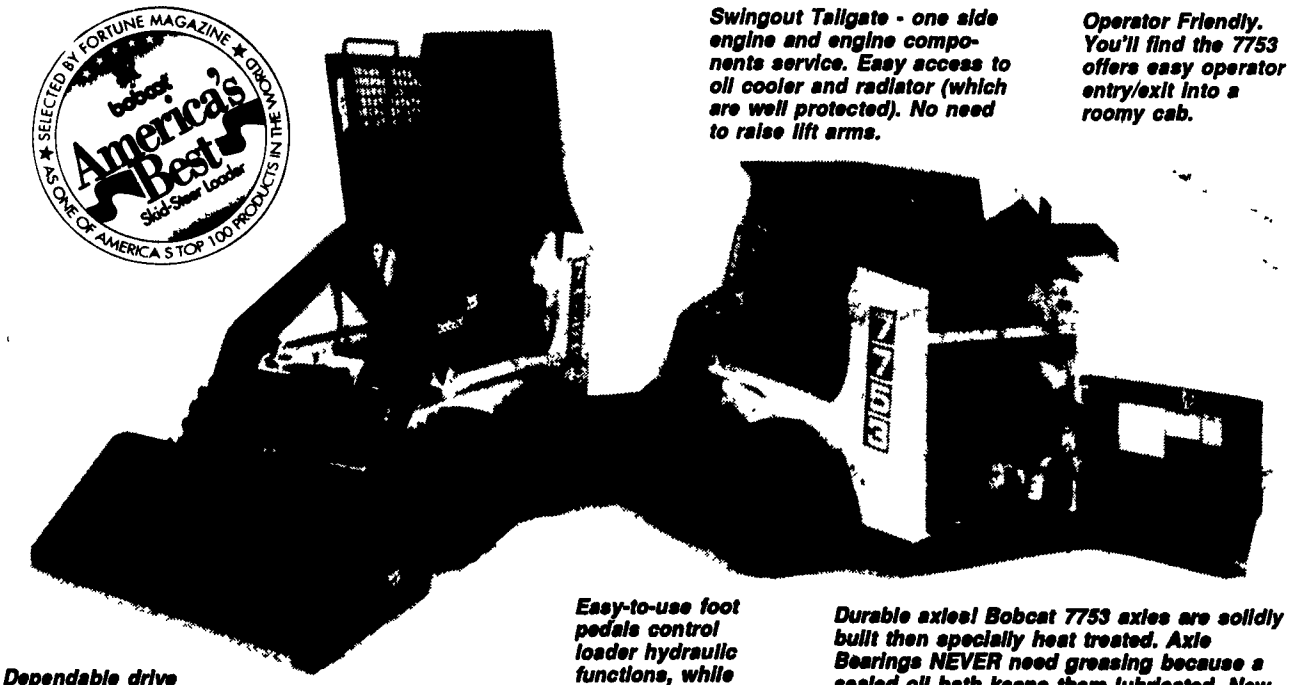
It's What's Inside That Counts!



Swingout Tailgate - one side engine and engine components service. Easy access to oil cooler and radiator (which are well protected). No need to raise lift arms.

Operator Friendly. You'll find the 7753 offers easy operator entry/exit into a roomy cab.

Guidelines Set For Reopening Markets

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Effective April 1, state departments of agriculture in Delaware, Maryland, and Pennsylvania jointly rescinded prohibitions against the sale of live poultry at auction markets in those states.

This action cancelled an order issued on January 26 that halted sales at live poultry auctions because of a serious threat posed to the poultry industry by outbreaks of avian influenza type H5N2. Both actions were taken in accordance with the Mid-Atlantic Poultry Health Agreement of 1987.

Guidelines for lifting the ban were developed at a March 10 meeting of the Mid-Atlantic Cooperative Extension (MACE) Poultry Health and Management Unit at the College Park campus of the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine. Poultry researchers, regulatory officials, and extension educators from Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture were in attendance.

The MACE guidelines called for live poultry auction markets to agree to these terms:

- Sentinel birds to be included with the caged poultry. Caging four sentinel birds in scattered locations at each market was suggested.
- The sentinel birds would be caged on the day prior to each auction and removed on the day following each auction. They would be shipped to a designated state animal health laboratory to be tested for avian influenza and other poultry diseases.
- Birds not testing serologically positive could be returned to the live auction markets and reused as sentinel birds within two weeks. Live auction market workers will do thorough sweeping and disinfecting of the premises between sales. They also will give proper care to the sentinel birds. USDA animal health regulatory officials will continue to make periodic environmental tests at the markets.
- Live auction market operators are requested to give renewed emphasis to recordkeeping so that buyers and sellers of live poultry can be identified. This procedure is necessary in order to locate flocks where disease outbreaks may have occurred.
- The USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service has been requested to develop equitable guidelines for dealing with flocks where disease outbreaks are confirmed.

Dr. H. Wesley Towers, a member of the guidelines committee, notes that the MACE suggestions will be followed completely in Delaware and Maryland. Towers is the state veterinarian in Delaware.

But Pennsylvania officials have decided not to adopt the sentinel bird procedure. No formal action toward accepting the guidelines has been taken in Virginia, partly because no prohibition against live auction sales had been instituted.

Poultry health professional workers involved in the MACE organization note that live poultry auction markets have received special attention because they were found to be involved in spreading avian influenza during the recent 1992-1993 outbreak and in various outbreaks during the 1980s.

The latest outbreaks so far have been confined to small flocks and have not as yet spread to large commercial broiler or layer flocks in the Mid-Atlantic area.

Along with an ever-growing commercial poultry industry, small flock numbers, too, are booming in the Mid-Atlantic and Delmarva areas, according to Dr. Charles J. Wabeck, a poultry specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service, Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources, a part of the University of Maryland System.

Wabeck is stationed at the Princess Anne facility of the Lower Eastern Shore Research and Education Center. He notes that more than 1,800 backyard flocks have been counted on the Delmarva peninsula in a project headed by Dr. Jeanninë M. Harter-Dennis at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore in Princess Anne.

Many of these small flocks are of a specialized nature, containing rare or valuable types of birds not found in large commercial flocks. For that reason, wholesale depopulation of infected flocks—as has been practiced with commercial flocks—may not be equitable. In some cases, the birds may be irreplaceable.

But small flock owners—and the live auction markets that they often patronize—need to wake up to the necessity of practicing biosecurity in order to prevent serious disease outbreaks that could devastate both the small flock/live auction network and the entire commercial poultry industry.

In the Delmarva area alone, broiler production and processing brings in an annual income of $1.25 billion and employs 22,000 persons, according to J. William Satterfield, executive director of Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., a trade organization headquartered at Georgetown, Del.

Leaders Discuss Ag Priorities

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Representatives of 34 agricultural organizations met here recently to outline priorities and concerns for Pennsylvania agriculture through the year 2000.

Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff told delegates to the day-long Pennsylvania Ag-Agenda program that the event was organized to give all agriculture-related organizations an opportunity to exchange ideas on both short and long term priorities.

"The delegates who attended made the decisions concerning topics for discussion, because prior to the meeting we asked each organization to outline its concerns," Wolff said.

"The discussion demonstrated there are great concerns over the environment, farmland preservation, governmental regulation, the profitability of farming, animal health, nutrient management, food safety, and a variety of funding issues."

After outlining priorities and goals, delegates to the Ag-Agenda conference discussed cooperative efforts so that organizations with common goals and concerns can work together toward solving problems.

Krause Introduces High-Residue Field Cultivator

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Krause Corporation recently announced the introduction of a giant five-section field cultivator, the 5650 Series.

Offered in 47 ft.-62 ft. sizes to match the needs of large operations, the 5650 fills a need for a large heavy-duty field cultivator that was designed to handle high-residue conditions when preparing seedbeds or incorporating herbicides.

Five bar main and wing frames feature a residue-tolerant 125-inches of fore and aft clearance. New heavy-duty two-piece K-Tines, standard equipment on the 5650 Series, provide 25-inches of underframe clearance for optimum residue flow through. The two-piece K-Tine features a rugged 1/2-inch x 3-inch upper leaf spring area and a high side loading strength to prevent the shank from "walking" around large weeds. Standard shank spacing is 9-inches to provide improved residue flow through and preserve more residue on the soil surface. Minimum side-to-side shank spacing of 36-inches on 9-inch spacing or 24 inches on 6 inch spacing ensures ample residue clearance. Six-inch shank spacing and/or spring cushioned C-Shanks are optional on the 5650. Spring cushioned C-shanks, with an 9-inch trip height, are a good choice for rocky field conditions.

A positive mechanical depth control system eliminates unwanted depth change problems because of hydraulic cylinder leakdowns associated with single-point depth control systems. Depth control and side-to-side leveling is accomplished on each section with a quick and easy-to-adjust hand crank.

Main and wing frame construction is of rugged 3-inch x 4-inch steel tubing. Tongue beams are massive 4-inch x 6-inch tubing to handle tough field conditions. Walking tandems on the main frame and wings provide excellent field flotation. Main frame tire size is 12.5Lx15-inch, and wing frames 9.5Lx15-inch.

The five-section 5650 Series field cultivators feature overcenter fold for easy road transport. Transport width is 19 ft. 9-inches on all models. Model 5648 features a transport height of 14 ft., and Models 5654 and 5660, 16 ft. 11-inches.

Finishing attachments include a 3-row tine or 3-row spike harrow to provide planter-ready seedbeds.

For more information, contact Krause Corporation, P.O. Box 2707, Hutchinson, KS 67504-2707, (316) 663-6161.

Raised on his father's livestock and cotton farm in Fayette County, Tenn., German belonged to FFA while attending the local high school. He earned a bachelor's in general agriculture from the University of Tennessee in 1968. During college, he was a member of AGR fraternity and the Ag Club, and also joined the U.S. Navy Officer Training School. After graduation, he served two years active duty in the Navy and retired from the reserves in 1991.

German first joined the Farm Credit System in 1970. For the first 10 years of his career, he was with the Memphis (TN) PCA. While in Memphis, he attended Memphis State University nights and earned a second degree in accounting. German left Memphis, as president of the PCA, to join the Louisville Farm Credit Bank where he remained six years. He then spent two years with the Farm Credit Services of Mid-America (Ky.) before joining Farm Credit of Southeastern Missouri where he spent 4 years prior to coming to Keystone in late 1992.

The program was sponsored by AGCO Corporation, the parent company of AGCO Allis (formerly known as Deutz-Allis).

"This newly designed line of tractors will have special appeal to loyal owners of the popular 8000 Series Allis Chalmers powershift tractors who have been anticipating this introduction," said AGCO President and CEO Robert J. Ratliff. "However, we also are confident the 9600 Series will not only meet, but exceed the expectations of any high horsepower powershift customer."

Tedder's Outer Sections Quickly Repositioned

GIBSON CITY, Ill. — M&W Gear Company announces the addition of PT174 hay tedder to their line of hay equipment.

The PT174 is a four rotor, pull-type tedder driven by 540 RPM PTO power. The folding outer sections can be quickly repositioned to change the 17 foot 2 inch working width to a narrow 8 foot 6 inch transport width.

The hinged outer sections are each equipped with a gauge wheel to allow even spreading of the crop on uneven ground. Each rotor has six double tine equipped arms. Operation requires only a 20 horsepower tractor.

Leveling requires only the use of one hand crank. Big 16 inch x 6.50 x 8 inch tires roll over ruts and holes. A slip clutch protects the drive line.

For more information, contact M&W Gear Company, 1020 South Sangamon Avenue, Gibson City, IL 60936.

Pesticide Safety Training Targets Hispanic Workers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania's mushroom growers lead the nation in production, accounting for 47 percent of the country's agaricus or "white button" mushrooms and capturing 37 percent of the nation's fresh market sales and 69 percent of the processing sales.

Many mushroom house workers are Hispanic, which can make it difficult for employers to communicate job-related safety information. But new educational tools developed by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences will help the state's mushroom growers protect Hispanic employees from pesticide exposure on the job.

"HAZfacts: Pesticide Safety for Mushroom Workers" provides Spanish-speaking workers with "right-to-know" information about poison signs and symptoms, personal protection equipment, safety signs, emergency treatment and personal hygiene. The package includes a videotape in Spanish with English subtitles and a flip chart with both Spanish and English text and clear illustrations.

"HAZfacts supports the mushroom industry's efforts to provide a safe workplace," said Dr. Ted Alter, regional director for the southeast region of Penn State Cooperative Extension. "Growers will be required to train workers starting a year from now, but they have begun the process well in advance, HAZfacts will make the training more effective."

Sam Steel, former project associate in agricultural and biological engineering, developed the content of the HAZfacts program before taking a position with the National Safety Council. He drew on his experience as an extension agent in Chester County, teaching Hispanic workers about pesticides.

"I wanted to help mushroom growers comply with the Environmental Protection Agency's new Worker Protection Standard," he said. "Starting in April 1994, it requires mushroom workers to be instructed within six days of being hired about pesticide safety in a language they understand. Over 1,500 mushroom workers in the state are Hispanic, so language differences can be an obstacle to effective training. The workers also have varying levels of literacy, which complicates teaching them about pesticide safety."

To overcome language and literacy barriers, Steel and communication specialists in the college consulted closely with mushroom workers to make sure the training materials could reach all employees. The actors in the video are mushroom workers who were taped at their workplace, and Steel said their involvement makes the package more realistic.

"If we were shooting a scene and an actor didn't understand what we were trying to explain, he'd tell us," said Steel. "We would explain the idea to him, and then he would help us put it in words the workers would use. This process tailored the HAZfacts package to the needs of the audience."

The project was sponsored by the Mushroom Ombudsman Program, a group of more than 20 mushroom growers in southeastern Pennsylvania. "HAZfacts makes pesticide safety easily understandable," said James Angelucci, the program's chairman. "It will help our employees know how to minimize the risk of pesticide exposure and what to do in an emergency." Rafael Ramos, a consultant to producers and farm workers for the program, translated the video script and flip-chart text into Spanish.

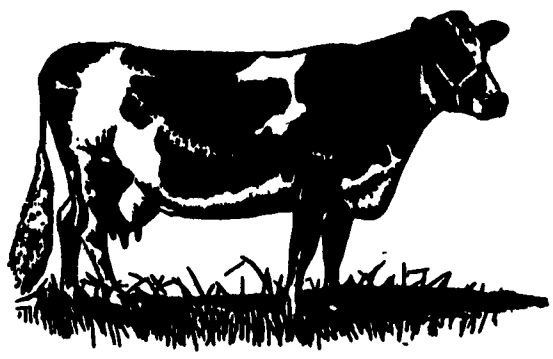
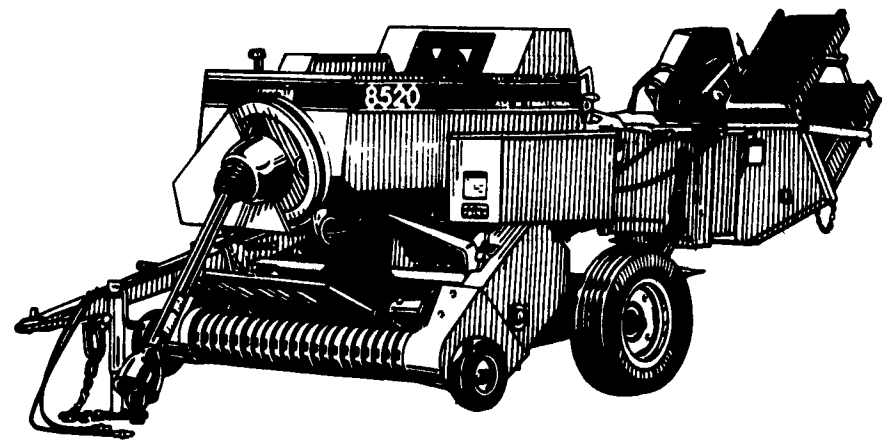
"Her" Choice





If Holsteins could talk, the conversation around the hay manger would be "Case IH Center Line Balers".

Why? More leaves per bale.

Our low profile pickup allows alfalfa hay to retain more dry leaves. We don't lift the windrow as high, saving leaves at the pickup. We also start to compress the hay before it enters the chamber to lock in leaves throughout the flake...leaves don't settle to the bottom and fall out the back of the baler to the degree of older style square balers.

More leaves means more milk, without increased overhead. Many studies show increased production of $1,000 per year over a milking herd of 100 with 2% leaf savings!

Case IH Center Line Balers...one of the quickest ways to increase milk production without adding cows. Improve your bottom line with improved leaf savings.

Financial Analysis From A Lender's Perspective

Editor's Note: This is the third of a seven part series to explain how Farm Credit analyzes farm and ranch businesses. A different aspect of financial analysis is addressed in each issue.

Liquidity – The key to weathering the storm

When analyzing the financial health of an agricultural business, one of the first items a lender will measure is liquidity. Assessing liquidity or working capital will tell how well a producer can withstand or recover from a bad year.

Measuring liquidity

Lenders consider a current ratio of 1.5:1 and above acceptable. That indicates the producer has enough current assets to cover expenses and still have a buffer for capital purchases or unseen problems. When the ratio falls to 1:1 or below, a producer must rely on other parts of the balance sheet to recover from a bad year. Often this requires restructuring debt to replace working capital to have the means to operate.

Assessing risk

The amount of working capital needed to maintain a financially sound operation varies depending on the nature and volatility of the commodity produced. Generally, the more frequent the opportunity to sell the commodity and the more stable the market, the less risky, and the less working capital needed. For example, a dairy that sells products monthly doesn't need as much working capital as a farm that sells products once a year, such as a potato grower.

Monitoring trends

While measuring the working capital at one point in time does give an indication of the health of the operation at the time, it's more revealing to compare that to the level of previous years. And if there has been change, it's important to understand what caused the change. For example, your working capital position is directly affected by your earnings (positive or negative), capital purchases made with non-borrowed funds, or by refinancing short- or intermediate-term debt to longer term. That's why it's critical that your lender understands the history of your operation as well as your plans for the future. ◆

LIQUIDITY OR WORKING CAPITAL: The amount by which your current assets (CA) exceeds your current liabilities (CL). CA/CL = Current ratio.

Example: CA = $150,000 and CL = $100,000, the current ratio is 1.5:1.

CURRENT ASSETS: Items owned that will either be used up within the next year or can be easily converted to cash without affecting the operation of the business.

Examples: Checking account balance, crops on hand, investment in growing crops, calves to be sold.

CURRENT LIABILITIES: Obligations that must be paid within the next 12 months, including principal payments on term and real estate loans.

Examples: Operating loan balance, principal and accrued interest on tractor payment, accounts payable for supplies.

Next week we will look at cash flow planning.

Nutrena Markets Heifer Feeds For Early Calving

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — The Nutrena Feed Division of Cargill has introduced a three-phase feeding program for dairy heifers designed to help shorten the time to first calving and improve milk production.

Called the Herd-Builder program, it features starter, grower, and developer feeds geared to each phase of heifer development.

Dr. Steve Smith, Nutrena's dairy research nutritionist, said the feeds address the sometimes ignored opportunity to help improve dairy production by better nutritional management of replacement heifers.

"Our research shows that when combined with other proper management practices this feeding program makes it possible to reduce the time required to first calving and initial lactation to 22 months, which is six months less than the national average of 28 months. This is accomplished by improving the amino-acid profiles in the feed," said Smith.

The Herd-Builder feeds provide a specific set of amino acids, not just a specific amount of protein, Smith said. This provides the nutrition for optimum growth and reduces the time needed for heifers to become productive. The feeds also contain a carefully designed mix of vitamins, minerals and energy-supplying nutrients.

The Herd-Builder program means producers can increase milk production and explore management options such as cutting back on the number of replacement heifers that are needed. They also can be more selective in their replacement choices or accelerate genetic improvements in their herds, Smith said.

The research also showed that faster-developing heifers are bigger at calving, increasing milk production. For every extra 50 pounds of body weight at lactation, a heifer has the capacity to produce 200 extra pounds of milk, Smith said.

National Farmers Organization Joins Coalition

AMES, Iowa — National Farmers Organization (NFO) recently joined Food Facts Coalition, an agriculture industry group educating consumers about the production, processing, distribution and nutritional value of human food.

"We joined Food Facts Coalition because we are concerned that consumers have accurate information about the food they eat," said Steve Halloran, NFO president.

"We want to educate consumers on the healthful benefits of eating foods such as red meat," he said. "It seems that too much of the public is accepting extremist views or are just plain confused by so much conflicting dietary research information."

Halloran stresses that National Farmers "will not necessarily endorse all Food Facts Coalition's claims. However, we'll be comfortable within the coalition helping disseminate the facts about most controversial food issues.

"We feel the collective voices of the organizations in the coalition give more validity to proper nutritional information," he said. "People can't eat right unless they know what's right."

Joining National Farmers in Food Facts Coalition are American Society of Animal Science, American Feed Industry Association, American Meat Institute, American Farm Bureau Federation, Livestock Marketing Association, National Live Stock and Meat Board, National Cattlemen's Association, National Milk Producers Federation, American National Cattle Women, Animal Industry Foundation, American Meat Science Association, American Dairy Science Association, and Federation of American Societies of Food Animal Sciences.

Batching Scale Indicator Uses Scrolling Messages

EZ320 batching electronic scale indicator designed for multiple batch weighing for livestock feeding, allows the operator to program and store a combination of 81 recipes and ingredients for multiple batching applications.

FORT ATKINSON, Wis. — J-Star Electronics, has introduced its new EZ320 batching electronic scale indicator.

The new EZ320 makes operation and programming a snap with its scrolling messages and help key. It's like having the operation manual with you all the time. Just push the help key and a scrolling message prompts you as to what to do next.

Designed for multiple batch weighing for livestock feeding, the EZ320 allows the operator to program and store a combination of 81 recipes and ingredients for multiple batching applications. The new EZ320 also automatically adjusts the ingredient amount to accommodate batch size changes without reprograming the indicator, and will print recipes if needed from memory.

The EZ320 also features a mix timer and alarm which can be set by the operator to avoid possible over mixing of the ration. An adjustable pre-alarm also alerts the operator that the scale is nearing the pre-set value. Another standard feature is a new large LCD with a long life fiberoptic backlight for easy reading day or night. The EZ320 is also adaptable to most other manufacturers load cells.

For more information, contact Al Hannam, J-Star Electronics, 801A Janesville Ave., Fort Atkinson, WI 53538, (800) 225-7695.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds
BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.
MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.
ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

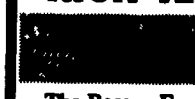
HIGH TENSILE FENCE...THE FARMER'S BEST INVESTMENT



The Beaver Fence Systems are tops! We installed 1 mile of their fence on our farm on Feb. 3, 1993, full size post, 3-1/2 feet deep, excellent braces. We used 5 strand (2 elec.) high tensil, all in place in just 8-1/2 hours! The fence is as straight as an arrow-excellent equipment-very efficient work!

"I am a hard man to convince, but after I saw how Beaver built the fence, I'm ready to put my digging iron away," says David W. Brubaker of Honey Grove Acres, RD1, Box 629 Honey Grove, PA 17035

HERE'S WHAT THEY'RE SAYING

"I was averaging 53 pounds per cow ... my average increased to 62 pounds, a 9-pound increase on AminoTek®!"

J. King,
Atglen, Pennsylvania

"I was on a mineral program for a few years and felt with my good forages and genetics, I should have been shipping a lot more milk. When I switched feeds, I went to Master Mix® AminoTek from Sensenig. My cows were over their peak, and I wasn't expecting to see much of an increase for a few months. When I started in January 1992, I was averaging 53 pounds per cow and, in two months, with only a couple of fresh cows, my average increased to 62 pounds, a 9-pound increase on AminoTek! They went up to 64 and stayed over 60 pounds for six months. The highest the cows have gone is 73 pounds per day.

"I am pleased with my dry cow program. Since feeding Master Mix Dry 'N Fresh, cows clean and take off better than ever.

"I am very happy with my AminoTek feeding program and also appreciate the great service I get from Sensenig."

"Since going on AminoTek®, my 1st calf heifers are peaking at 85-90 pounds per day ...and hold there!"

Gap Farm, Gap, Pennsylvania

"Since I switched to AminoTek with Sensenig, my production has jumped and also my butterfat. The first year, our average milk was affected by feet problems. Now that the feet are OK, the cows freshen, clean and take off! I feed all my grain and forages six times a day. I have a water system in and test my water at least once a year to make sure everything is OK.

"Since going on AminoTek, my 1st calf heifers are peaking at 85-90 pounds per day, and hold there! The cows are also peaking and holding real good. The way the cows clean up their feed and have been milking the last two months, I should be able to hit 22,000. I am very happy with my AminoTek program."

Extension Honors Professional

COLLEGE PARK, md. — James W. Simms of Oakland is this year's recipient of the Director's Award for Extension Excellence.

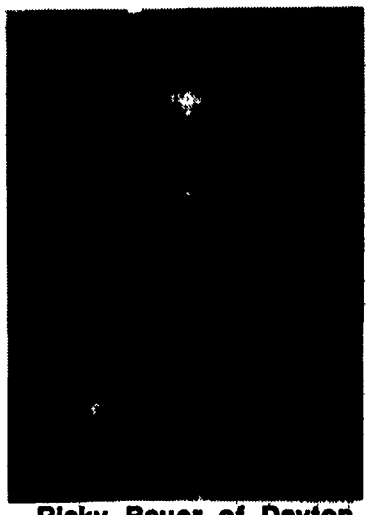
Simms has 20 years of experience as a 4-H and agricultural science agent, successively, in Garrett County.

He was honored at a luncheon in Columbia during the recent annual conference of the Cooperative Extension Service, Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources, a part of the University of Maryland System. The honor is bestowed each year on an outstanding county agent in Maryland by Dr. Craig S. Oliver, the state extension diector.

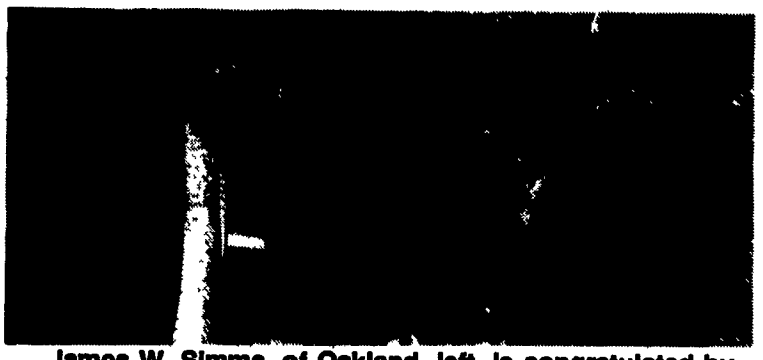
In 1987, Simms helped to organize the Mountain Fresh Producers Association, which benefits growers in Garrett County, Md., as well as in Tucker and Preston counties, W. Va.

He also has established educational programs in farm financial management, dairy sciences, and field crops. Earlier in his extension career as a 4-H agent, Simms was involved with the Western Maryland 4-H Camp near Bittinger. He has served since 1982 as the camp's general manager.

Simms interrupted his extension career for nine years, from 1973 to 1982, to operate a retail home and garden center with his family in Oakland. He is a former president of the Maryland Association of Extension 4-H Agents and is an active member of the Maryland Association of County Agricultural Agents.



Ricky Bauer of Dayton, Howard County, shows off his producer award for outstanding service to the state's swine industry. Presentation was made during annual banquet of the Maryland Pork Producers Association at Queenstown. Austin C.J. Wiles of Middletown, Frederick County, received the James R. Ferguson Memorial Award for feeder pig production. John J. Hafer, Jr., of Frostburg, Garrett County, was named Maryland's Pork All-American for 1993. This award includes an all-expense-paid trip to the World Pork Expo scheduled June 11-13 in Des Moines, Iowa.



James W. Simms, of Oakland, left, is congratulated by Bruce W. Hotchkiss of Easton following the awards luncheon during the annual extension conference in Columbia. Simms received the Director's Award for Extension Excellence. In addition to a plaque, Simms received a $1,000 check from Southern States Cooperative, a watch from the Maryland State Fair and Agricultural Society, and a University of Maryland chair from The Delmarva Farmer newspaper.

Goetz Joins Progeny Test Program

DEFOREST, Wis. — Cynthia K. Goetz of Mercersburg has elected to participate in the American Breeders Service (ABS) progeny test (PT) program.

In this program, the Sugardrop Farm will be using semen from young dairy bulls that are genetically tested by ABS.l The ABS PT program is unique because it allows test herds to select which young bulls they would like to sample, while also allowing them the option to have ABS send them semen from a non-specific young sire. The goal in either case is to have each progeny tested young sire receive a highly reliable sire summary at the conclusion of the testing period. Information gathered from the Goetz herd will be used to develop global genetic improvement.

ABS selects PT herds based on superior management practices, accurate record-keeping programs, animal identification program, and a strong desire to use the best genetics available to improve their herd. The management of the PT herd affects the quality of the data ABS receives. ABS relies on PT herds for accurate animal identification and official DHIA records.

After receiving this accurate data, the Sugardrop Farm will receive benefit payments from ABS for each PT calf born, and again for each PT-sired daughter included on the sire's second USDA summary.

Producers interested in more information on the ABS PT program should contact their local ABS representative.

State Envirothon To Feature Pesticide Education

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — More than 10,000 Pennsylvania high school students are expected to compete in this year's state Envirothon on June 19 at Pine Grove Furnace State Park. The event enables teams of students to learn more about the environment through hands-on, competitive events.

The winning team will represent Pennsylvania at the national Envirothon competition July 31-August 4 at Niagara University in New York. Local teams qualify for state competition by winning county-level contests.

Envirothon teams receive study materials on aquatics, forestry, soils, wildlife and current issues. The team adviser, usually a teacher, can integrate these materials in a science or agricultural science curriculum or teach them through clubs or other activities.

This year's materials feature a pesticide education curriculum developed by Kerry Hoffman, pesticide education coordinator in Penn State's Office of Pesticide Education, with support from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

"The curriculum helps teachers explain the issues while helping students develop a better understanding of the risks and benefits associated with pesticides," Hoffman said. "It covers topics such as the fate of pesticides in the environment, pesticide residues and tolerances, alternative control tactics and integrated pest management."

Hoffman hopes the material will be used in many high school science and agriculture courses. "Integrating a pesticide education unit into existing science and agriculture curricula enables students to make their decisions regarding pesticides and food safety based on facts, not emotions," she said.

The course examines the history of pesticides and principles of pest control. "We've had pesticides as long as we've had pests," Hoffman said. "The earliest use of chemicals as pesticides dates back to 2500 B.C., when the Greeks burned sulfur to control insects and mites."

The curriculum explores pesticide terminology, the registration process for introducing a new pesticide and federal and state laws regulating pesticide use. Students learn about levels of toxicity and risk, the four possible ways pesticides can enter the body, general symptoms of pesticide poisoning and appropriate first aid. They also learn how to reduce human and environmental exposure to pesticides.

The first local Envirothon competition was held in 1979 in the Fulton, Luzerne, and Schuylkill conservation districts. In 1984, the first state competition was held at Shaver's Creek Environmental Center in Centre County, with six teams competing.

By 1992, the program had grown to include more than 10,000 students from 56 of Pennsylvania's 67 counties. Interest also has spread outside the state. In 1988, a National Envirothon competition was initiated. More than 20 states now participate.

To learn more about the Envirothon, contact Jenny Pyers at the Envirothon Office, 225 Pine Street, Harrisburg, PA 17101, (717) 238-4998. The event is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts and the State Conservation Commission.

Unverferth Unveils New Drill Fill Model

KALIDA, Ohio — The time, labor, and seed savings advantages of the Unverferth Drill Fill are now available for producers who use the Case 5200 and 5400 drills.

The ground-level loading vertical-lift auger moves bulk or bag seed to a horizontal center-fill auger in the capacity expanded seed hopper. The cross auger distributes seed evenly throughout the grain tank minimizing seed travel and handling damage. The hopper extension increases drill capacity by up to 20 percent and is primed and painted to match the drill.

The Drill Fill's spring assisted-lift vertical auger stores conveniently across the rear of the drill for ease of transport and storage. Auger controls are positioned for easy operation from either the ground or drill platform.

Optional brush-tip flighting for extra gentle seed handling is available for both the vertical and horizontal augers.

For more information, contact Unverferth Manufacturing Company, Inc., P.O. Box 357, Kalida, OH 45853, (800) 322-6301 or (419) 532-3121.

Scholarship To Leadership School Provided

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — A scholarship to the Conservation Leadership School will be provided by the Franklin County Conservation District to a county student between the ages of 15-18 who have completed at least one ninth-grade science course.

The schools are scheduled for July 4-July 17 and July 18-31, at the Civil Engineering Camp at Penn State's rustic Stone Valley recreation areas. Students stay in platform tents with bunks and concrete floors and use the Civil Engineering Lodge and heated bathhouses.

Cost of attending this school is $370. The district pays $100, which includes lodging and all meals, course materials, etc. The student is responsible for their own transportation to and from Stone Valley in Huntington County.

The curriculum focuses on the application of principles of forestry, wildlife management, soils management, watershed management, architecture, and other areas of conservation. Note: This is not a recreational summer camp - students should have a strong desire to learn. Dr. James Hamilton heads a staff of resident instructors, all with academic backgrounds and experience in the aforementioned subjects.

For students interested in attending this school, a brief essay on why they wish to attend should be mailed to the Franklin County Conservation District, 550 Cleveland Avenue, Chambersburg, PA 17201, no later than May 17. This essay is a must to determine who will attend this school in the event there is more than one application.

For further information, contact the conservation district office, (717) 264-8074.

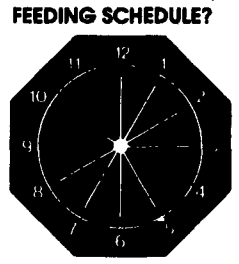
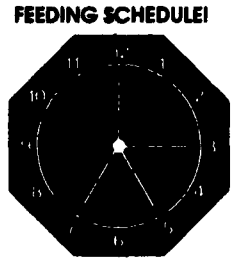
DRAG AUGER FEEDING SCHEDULE?



BIG DUTCHMAN CHAIN FEEDER FEEDING SCHEDULE!



How often do your feeders run in a day? It is generally necessary to operate drag auger feeders as many as eight or more times per day because of limited feeding space and the small quantity of feed presented at one time. That creates tremendous competition for the little feed available. The result of this competition is damaged eggs... from feet, toes and collisions. Big Dutchman chain feeders can feed your flock by running as few as three or four times a day, with little competition for feed, a calmer flock and fewer cracks and checks.

IF YOU ARE...
FORCED TO FEED
more than four times a day or during peak laying periods, call 911 for your egg casualties or. . . call (717) 393-5807 for information on how our chain feeder pampers your product. . . from cage to carton.

PFA Testifies On Water Legislation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A spokesman for the Pennsylvania Farmer's Association (PFA)testified before the state Senate Environmental Resources and Energy Committee on legislation to expand the water management authority of the Department of Environmental Resources (DER).

William Adams, director of natural resources for the statewide farm organization, told the committee that Senate Bill 351 needs to be substantially improved before PFA can support it.

One of the biggest problems, Adams said, is the legislation's ". . . failure to clearly identify the limitations of regulatory power to be given to the Department of Environmental Resources.

"The bill would give broad power and latitude to the Department to impose restrictions and requirements against individual users. The bill would also allow the Department to determine and designate water conservation areas, thereby imposing even greater restrictions against individual water users."

The bill also fails to provide direction to DER on water usage priorities or water management goals,Adams said.

"Senate Bill 351 is designed to give broad regulatory power and board discretion with no statutory effort to direct the use or to limit the potential abuse of that power," Adams testified. "Without much more clearly defined ground rules governing regulatory authority, we fear that the current rights of farmers to use water to meet their farming needs are at the mercy of the Department's whims. This condition we cannot accept."

Specific PFA objections include water permit requirements which would force farmers to either get a permit in anticipation of a drought or wait until a drought is imminent and a permit is least likely to be obtained. Even then, DER could limit the permit "in the public interest," or designate the area as a water conservation area.

"Water management legislation should attempt to secure and guarantee water rights for all users, both large and small. The bill's provisions create the real possibility that water 'rights' will be whatever the Department subjectively wants them to be," Adams told the committee.

PFA also believes cropland irrigation needs to be included in the bill's "emergency withdrawal" provisions. DER's authority under the bill to deny or revoke water user permits for failure to comply with any state or federal law is too broad, PFA testified, and should be limited to intentional violations involving water usage. A provision giving private individuals the right to sue should be eliminated. "Too often, private individuals do not have the technical expertise available to the Department to assess the likelihood of violations," Adams said.

PFA also objects to provisions of the bill for water use fees. In addition, clarification of jurisdiction is needed between DER and the various river commisioners.

"Our policy supports the right of the individual to use water in connection with his property rights, including the management of that water for reasonable and beneficial use," Adams testified. "Property owners should be granted a secure right to groundwater and to develop groundwater resources, unless their development would impact other water established uses within the groundwater basin."

In conclusion, Adams testified, "We favor efforts to inventory groundwater resources. We also favor the development of a plan for water management during drought or other water shortage emergencies, including identification of relative emergency states. Upon the declaration of such emergency by the Governor, the state should be authorized to take necessary actions for equitable uses of water. However, any action undertaken during a water emergency must give priority to agriculture to secure a quantity of water needed for production of food and fiber. Furthermore, specific state action taken should be subject to a review board in which at least 30 percent of board members are farmers."

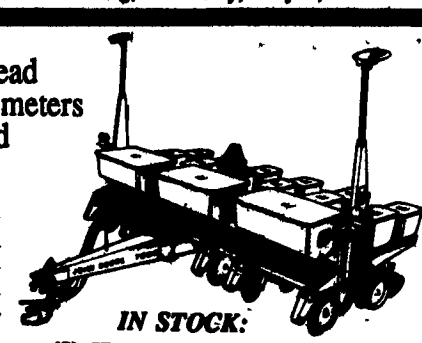
The VacuMeter™ is light-years ahead of the Finger Pickup and competitive meters in versatility, accuracy and speed



Improve corn seed spacing up to 17 percent

Seed corn shapes and sizes have changed dramatically. To maintain seeding accuracy, you need a seed meter that can meet today's demanding seed challenges. You need the VacuMeter system, offering up to a 17 percent increase in corn metering accuracy over the finger pickup system.

New single-cross varieties of seed vary in shape and size. Because the VacuMeter system uses gentle vacuum pressure to hold seeds in place, it handles all sizes of seed accurately. And VacuMeter accuracy may enable you to reduce planting rates to save on seed costs.

HC TRAILER SPRAYERS

With the increased popularity of no-till crops and more use of post-emergence herbicides, the High Clearance sprayers find their way through more and more fields. GEHL Swing Frame Mower Conditioners

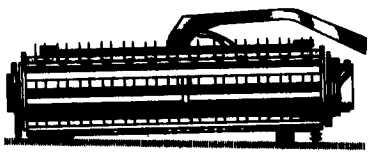
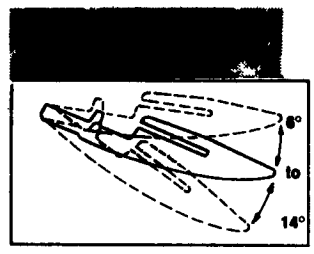
1 ONLY - 12' Gehl Swing Frame In Stock At Old Price With 2 Year Warranty, Model 2240



Three point flotation support provides both lateral and vertical flotation. The header is carried on two outside arms and pivots on a center link for clean cutting in uneven fields. This faster reacting system provides outstanding cutterbar protection from rocks and other field obstructions. It's easily adjustable for varying field conditions.



Easily adjustable guard angle. Depending on field conditions you may want to adjust the angle on the cutterbar. By simply adjusting the centerlink (top photo), you have infinite variation from 6 to 14 degrees.

BIG SAVINGS ON A SUPER BALER.

When it's time to bale, you demand reliability and performance. And that's what a Gehl baler delivers. Here's how:

Prep a seedbed with just one pass

The multi-purpose Ford Model 214 seedbed conditioner enables you to prepare a seedbed with just one pass — you'll plant more quickly with less soil loss. The 18-inch discs slice through residue, the shanks or tines mix it with the soil, and the flexible, spike-tooth harrow evens everything out. Stop in to see this latest time-saving minimum tillage tool from Ford New Holland, and make your job just a little easier.

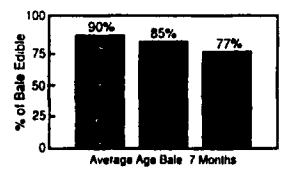
MYTH NO.3

"Variable chamber balers have less spoilage."

FACT: No other round baler on the market can match the low spoilage rates of a Claas fixed chamber baler. That means, on a 50 acre field, you would average 13 tons more spoilage with competitive variable chamber balers.

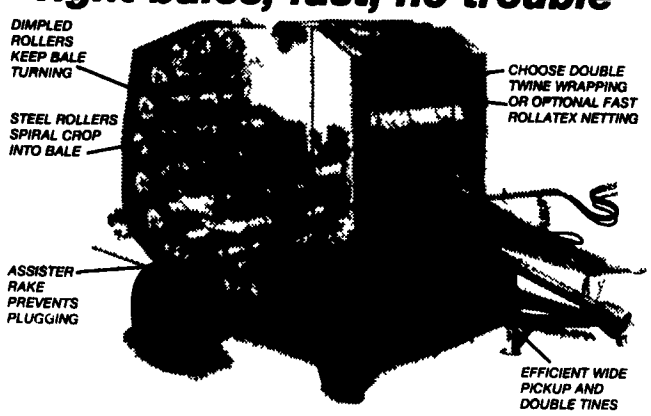
Fact is, the more edible volume per bale, the less bales fed per animal. And that means more efficient feeding.



See your Claas dealer for all of the facts before you base your baler purchase on fiction.

Owners say:

"Tight bales, fast, no trouble"



DIMPLED ROLLERS KEEP BALE TURNING
STEEL ROLLERS SPIRAL CROP INTO BALE
ASSISTER RAKE PREVENTS PLUGGING
CHOOSE DOUBLE TWINE WRAPPING OR OPTIONAL FAST ROLLATEX NETTING
EFFICIENT WIDE PICKUP AND DOUBLE TINES

CLAAS ANNOUNCES THE COMING ROTO-CUT SILAGE BALER

The Pickup On This Baler Cuts Hay Into 6-12" Lenghts. Now You Can Feed Hi-Moisture Round Bales With A Fork. Or You Can Mix These Bales In A TMR Mixer Without A Tub Grinder.

LOOK TO MAHONING OUTDOOR FURNACE FOR EASY, WARM INEXPENSIVE LIVING!

Get Comforting Heat and Efficiency.

The Mahoning Outdoor Multi-Fuel Furnaces provide thermostat controlled heat by economically burning wood, coal or fuel oil. The furnace is placed 25-100 feet outside the structure to be heated; connections between the furnace and building are buried underground. Wood or coal is the primary burning fuel lasting 8-12 hours in the furnace For convenient, automatic firing the separate oil burner combustion chamber can provide heat until wood or coal burning is desired Both Wood/Coal & the Fuel Oil burners are enclosed to heat the same water tank The purpose of the firebox is to heat the water-filled tank surrounding the outside unit, this heated water is then circulated through underground pipes into your home A heating coil is installed inside your existing heat system The thermostat controls the blower which picks the heat off the coils and delivers warm air through existing ducts and registers There are safeties which eliminate the danger of over-pressurizing the system and automatic shutdown in case of a power failure. The Mahoning Outdoor Furnace can also be connected to an existing hydronic heating system, that operates at 180° F or less, using fin tube baseboard, cast iron radiators or hanging hydronic heaters Only the thermostat and heating coils are installed inside your home, eliminating open fire dangers, smoke, dust and messy kindling wood boxes Adjust the thermostat for the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace to your comfort setting and it automatically controls the water pump and blower to circulate heat to your home. You may set the thermostat for your existing heat system to back-up the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace when not in operation or in case the firebox is left to burn out. An Aquastat senses the temperature of the water in the outside unit and automatically adjusts the combustion rate to maintain the correct temperature (normally 180 degrees).

Hot Water too...!

A Mahoning Outdoor Furnace is a heat exchanger By running a cold water line from your home to the outside unit, fresh household cold water can be heated and returned to the hot water plumbing in the house A tempering valve adjusts the hot water at the faucets to a range of 120° to 160°. This boiler system will adapt to any existing plumbing. Heat your pool & hot tub with energy generated by a Mahoning Outdoor Furnace!

ORDER YOUR NEW SILO WITH A FIBERDOME CHUTE OR REPLACE YOUR OLD WORN OUT CHUTE

fiberdome SILO CHUTE

made with fiberglass, the material of the future — and proven in the past —

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos. Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out.

The chute is constructed in full 7½' sections to minimize the number of joints. Connecting joints have a 2½' tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

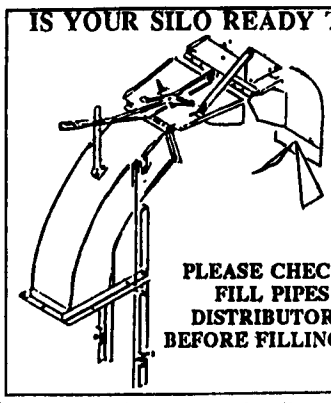
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

CONCRETE REASONS WHY A NEW POURED CONCRETE SILO IS YOUR BEST INVESTMENT...

NO USED SILOS!
NO REBUILT SILOS!
NO PREOWNED SILOS!
"ALL NEW FOR YOU!!"

A. Enhancement of cash flow. Improved forage quality results in consistent, and increased milk production.

B. "Safe Silo" Our silos meet or exceed industry standards, reducing/protecting lender liability.

C. Initial Cost. Used or cheap pre-fab silos may have a lower initial cost, but based upon useful life, the new poured concrete silo will have a lower annual cost: due to longer life and lower maintenance costs.

D. Residual Value. Our new, poured concrete silos are built for "generations of use", and enhance the future value of the farm.

E. Storage Losses Reduced. Poured concrete silos consistently out-perform all other methods of storing and preserving the total digestible nutrients in forage crops.

F. Protecting Forage Quality. Oxygen and heat cause the most damage to stored silage and haylage. Our poured concrete silos are the very best system to PROTECT YOUR FORAGE QUALITY... "NOBODY PROTECTS FORAGE QUALITY LIKE WE DO...NOBODY"

LEAN ON ME

New LEAN GENERATION® Starter Chow.®

From the people who know how to feed for lean.

It takes a special touch to succeed in the nursery. The nutrient needs of the baby pig constantly change. But, until now, you couldn't make the needed adjustments.

Now Purina research has applied lean technology to the young pig. There are four entirely-new Lean Generation Starters which adjust to both the weaning weight and the age of baby pigs.

Only one place to get them. Your Local Purina dealer. Call now.
